New Heart Transplant —'Better Than First'

Child Killing Charge Awaits Sanity Tests For Mother

Mary Jo Goodson, the 36-year-old San Rafael mother booked in Marin County Jail on suspicion of the murder of her 3-year-old son, was undergoing psychiatric examination in Napa State Hospital today.

Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa said Mrs. Goodson was taken to Napa on a 72-hour committment order shortly after her booking Saturday. He said a report was expected tomorrow or Thursday.

District Attorney Bruce B. Bales said today his office would await a report from Napa before proceeding with a murder charge. He said he would either charge her with murder and hold a sanity hearing or start proceedings to have a judge commit her.

Meanwhile, homicide investigators said they were unable to explain the motive for the fatal stabbing of the son, Richard Anthony, at the family apartment home at 725 Kerner Boulevard. The boy would have been four on Jan. 25.

Police Insp. Richard A. Douglas said the woman had received psychiatric treatment in the past.

Since her divorce from her husband Richard Goodson, a salesman living in Oakland, Mrs. Goodson had taken care of her family of five, four girls and the son.

MARY JO GOODSON
To be examined

Douglas said there were photographs of the girls throughout the apartment, but none of the son.

He disclosed today the murder was discovered when one of the daughters overheard Mrs. Goodson explaining what she had done to her mother in a telephone call to East St. Louis, Ill.

By what was said over the telephone, Douglas placed the time of death at about 5 a.m. Saturday. The boy was stabbed twice in the back by a knife either in the mother's bedroom or the bathroom, he said.

One daughter, Isabel Christine, 9, was away visiting friends on the fatal morning. The other children in the apartment at the time were Sally, 14, Germain, 10, and Jo Ann, 6.

The girls were asleep in other rooms and the mother slept with the boy.

Sally heard her mother talking over the telephone to Illinois about 9 a.m., said Douglas.

As a result of what the girl said she heard, she obtained a key to a storage shed from her mother's dressing table and found the boy's body wrapped in bedding there.

She immediately went to a nearby apartment occupied by San Rafael Police Insp. Gerald R. Green and told him: "My mother killed Ricky and left him in the storage room."

When Green first entered the Goodson apartment, the mother was sitting at the dining room table. Her daughters all were crying.

Chiesa said Douglas and

Bi-Racial Operation In Africa

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Dr. Christian Barnard today performed his second successful heart transplant and told newsmen this operation went better than the first.

Today's transplant was the third such operation ever performed, the second by Barnard and the first between members of the white and colored races.

The man who received the heart was Dr. Philip Blaiberg, 58, a retired dentist who had been critically ill with a diseased heart. Barnard said Blaiberg is conscious and in "very good condition."

SUFFERS STROKE

The heart was taken from the body of Clive Haupt, 24, who died today after suffering a stroke while visiting a beach resort on New Year's Day.

Barnard gave few details of the operation itself, but he said the donor's heart began beating of its own accord once it was implanted in a five-hour operation.

In history's first heart transplant operation it had been necessary to start the donated heart with an electric shock. In that operation Barnard and his team of surgeons implanted a heart in South African grocer Louis Washkansky, 53, on Dec. 13. Washkansky lived 18 days until pneumonia caused failure of his breathing.

SWITCHED OFF

Barnard said this time when the heart-lung machine-which kept Blaiberg's blood circulating and aereated during the operation-was switched off for the first time "the new heart took up circulation immediately."

The white dentist had said before the operation the color of the donor meant nothing to him. The donor was of mixed white and African blood and was considered "colored" under South Africa's rigid racial laws.

Hospital sources said Blaiberg would be transferred as soon as he can be safely moved to a SAIGON — American troops killed 351 Communists with steel dart barrages in a Cambodian border battle today that closed out the bloodiest truce of the Vietnam war, military spokesmen said. The 36-hour pause over, U.S. Jets resumed bombing North Vietnam, they said.

Fighting against being overrun by 1,500 Viet Cong at a U.S. artillery base 60 miles northwest of Saigon the Americans lowered their artillery barrels and at almost point blank range fired 100 "beehive" shells into the Communist ranks. Each round burst into hundreds of half-inch darts that shredded the Viet Cong ranks, Kaylor said.

U.S. TOLL 23

The defense of the Dau Tieng area post cost 23 U.S. lives. Spokesmen also reported 153 Americans wounded.

They said that in 177 Communist violations of the New Year's truce, 27 Americans were killed and 205 wounded. South Vietnamese forces lost 44 men killed and 132 wounded, they reported.

U.S. spokesmen said at least 569 Communists were killed in the pause and 11 captured. They said never before had so many Communists been killed in so many violations in so short a truce.

NO MORE TRUCES?

The Communist thrust, spokesmen said, gave the allies second thoughts about a 48-hour truce that has been accepted in principle for Tet, the Lunar New Year Jan. 30.

Guerrillas striking in the period between the expiration of their own cease-fire and the allied-proclaimed truce attacked a dozen government installations in the northern coastal lowlands.

War Declaration On Dollar Drain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration's declared war on the widening gap in the balance of payments would press every American into the defense of the dollar—if Congress goes along.

President Johnson pegged higher taxes as the keystone of a New Year's program he described as "firm and decisive." It incorporates the first mandatory controls U.S. in history on American investment abroad and an appeal to Americans to travel only in this hemisphere if possible.

The investment controls were imposed under existing law. Congress will reconsider later this month Johnson's 10 per cent income tax surcharge proposal.

Government officials held out the possibility of further restrictions on travel such as a tax on Americans going overseas or limits on the amount of money they may take with them. Officials said this must be worked out with Congress.

Henry H. Fowler, secretary of the treasury said Americans should realize that travel abroad is damaging to the country.

The entire program is designed to slash the dollar drain by $13 billion. It includes an effort to cut government spending abroad by $500 million this year

Kettenhofen Takes Supervisors' Gavel

Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen today took over the gavel as new chairman of the Marin County Board of Supervisors for 1968 and expressed hope that meetings can be streamlined so that they will not drag on to 5:30 and 6 p.m.

Kettenhofen succeeded Thomas T. Storer. Supervisor John F. McInns, named new vice chairman, is in line for chairman in 1969.

Storer issued the traditional statement of the outgoing chairman.

"The main accomplishment in 1967 was the strong resolution by the Marin County Transit Board opposing the second decking of the Golden Gate Bridge," he said. "This removed the roadblock in the way of solving our transit problems."

He said he is gratified with the growing cooperation between Marin and San Francisco supervisors and Golden Gate Bridge directors.

Questions that deserve priority in 1968 are in transporta-

Flames, Gas Empty Town

DUNREITH, Ind. (UPI)—The threat of lethal gas fumes and more explosions kept this town evacuated and stymied firefighters battling flames and smoke bursting from the wreckage of two freight trains today.

Indiana State Police Lt. Kenneth Komer said no further attempt would be made to stifle the flames until an expert from the Dow Chemical Co. arrived.

Komer explained that one of the burning tank cars contained gasetone cynanhydrin, whose fumes could release hydrogen cyanide, a deadly gas. He said

LBJ Studying Hanoi's Hint Of Peace Talk

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson says the administration is carefully evaluating reports that North Vietnam might enter into peace discussions if the United States were to unconditionally stop the bombing of that country.

Hanoi Radio broadcast a statement yesterday saying that North Vietnam "will talk" when the United States has "unconditionally stopped its bombing and all other acts of war" against the North.

"We are evaluating them," Johnson said of the reports.

While busy with many domestic problems, the President was studying foreign developments in Vietnam and Cambodia, as well.

He told his New Year's Day news conference he was "very hopeful that we can make advances toward peace" in 1968, adding, "we are pursuing every possible objective."

He said he felt the enemy knows it can no longer win a military victory in Vietnam. But, he added, the North Vietnamese would have to give some evidence of their willingness to seek peace before he could predict such prospects.

The President expressed interest and pleasure over Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk's reported statement that he was ready to talk with a U.S. envoy about the problem of North Vietnamese troops and the Viet Cong using his country as a sanctuary.

"We are quite encouraged," Johnson said, but he advised no further announcement would be made until "we have gone into it more thoroughly."

In other actions from his LBJ Ranch, the President signed four bills aimed at helping servicemen. He said the bills reflect in small measure "a large concern for America's men-at-arms" and show America does not forget service in freedom's cause.

The President also appointed an 18-member commission on obscenity and pornography to look into the relationship between such material and anti-social behavoir. The commission will be headed by William B. Lockhart, head of the University of Minnesota Law School.

The President was scheduled to take action today, too, on three major bills with midnight deadlines—social security, education and foreign aid.

Husband Held In Slaying Of Marinite

The estranged husband of a Homestead Valley woman was in San Francisco Jail today, booked on suspicion of her murder.

Police said the victim, Mayoma Irene Reymundo, 46, of 159 Linden Lane, was stabbed to death in a San Francisco parking lot Friday.

A group of men who heard screams coming from the lot grabbed the husband, Jose Reymundo, 41, of San Francisco, and held him until the arrival of police.

Meanwhile, the victim's sister, Norma Jean Stout of 113 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael, unaware of the murder and anxious about threats she said were made against Mrs. Reymundo by the husband, filed a missing person report with the Marin Sheriff's office.

She said she last saw her sister Friday morning when she left for her work in San Francisco.

Mrs. Stout said that, since Mrs. Reymundo had separated from her husband a month ago, Reymundo had frequently met his estranged wife in a parking lot and also written, asking her to return to him.

Mrs. Stout told deputies the husband had said he would "die in her arms" and "die at her feet." He had also threatened

Reagan Pledges Broad Spectrum Delegation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan announced today creation of a committee composed of all segments of the Republican party to put together his favorite son presidential delegation for the California primary in June.

The governor also indicated to newsmen that he intends to hold his delegation behind him past the first ballot at the GOP national convention in August.

Reagan still insists he is not a candidate for president. He says he wants to lead a delegation pledged to him as a favorite son to prevent an intra-party fight between moderates and conservatives in the primary.

Some Republicans fear his delegation will not include representatives of all segments of the party — Republicans who favor Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, former Vice President Richard Nixon, and Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

Reagan replied that such fears would be quieted "very shortly" when he released the names of the committee that will choose the delegation.

What will the delegates do after casting their votes for Reagan on the first ballot?

"If you are going to have a favorite son candidacy for the purpose of using your state leadership, you are going to make every effort to operate on a unit basis so you won't scatter your strength," he replied.

That means that if the Reagan-for-President boom does not materialize, other hopefuls will have to deal with the governor if they want California's support.

Reagan's aim in inviting all segments to join his delegation is to prevent Nixon or Romney or anyone else from challenging him in the primary. There have been rumors of Nixon entering the primary, although they have never been confirmed. And supporters of Romney have talked about entering his name in the primary.

Looking ahead to the legislative session which begins next Monday, Reagan made it clear that he would oppose—at least

Air Force Maj. James F. Low, son of Paul V. Low of Sausalito, was reported missing in action over North Vietnam Dec. 16, according to word received by his father.

Low, a highly decorated pilot during the Korean War, was credited with destruction of nine MIG's in that conflict.

He later was stationed at Hamilton Air Force Base.

He is a graduate of University of California and enlisted in the Air Force in 1950.

His mother is Mrs. Paul Hanson of Lemmon Valley, Nev.

Ford Joins Swing To Boost Prices

DETROIT (UPI)—The Ford Motor Co. today announced price increases of $23 to $32 per car, similar to those announced last week by the other U.S. automakers.

All four auto companies said prices were increased to cover shoulder harnesses, which by government order became standard equipment for front seats of cars built after Jan. 1.

Ford said suggested retail prices of Ford, Falcon, Fairlane, Mustang and Thunderbird cars increased $23.18; prices of Mercury, Montego and Cougar cars, $23.00, and prices of Lincoln Continental cars, $32.40.

Pope Appoints 34 To Curia

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today appointed 34 non-Italian prelates and clergymen to policy making and advisory positions in the Roman Curia.

The move was considered a major step in the pontiff's long campaign to internationalize the Roman Catholic Church's central administration, accused by progressive clerics of being dominated by Italian conservatives.

LIBERIA INAUGURAL

Tubman Starts His 25th Year

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — President William V. S. Tubman, starting his 25th year as president of this republic founded by freed American slaves, will visit President Johnson in Washington Feb. 27 and 28, U.S. sources said today.

The invitation was extended by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who represented Johnson at the 72-year-old Liberian leader's inauguration today. Tubman, son of a woman born in Atlanta, Ga., said the coming four years in office would be his last term.

A flash of brilliant color from the orange, green and purple ceremonial robes of African guests and evening dresses of many wives brightened the inaugural ball last night at Monrovia's old executive mansion.

Surrounded by red, white and blue Liberian flags, Tubman sat with his wife, Antoinette; Humphrey and his wife, Muriel, and President Felix Houphouet Boigny of neighboring Ivory Coast at a table of honor overlooking the dance floor.

Tubman and his wife opened dancing to a marching tune, but sat out most of the modern numbers.

Humphrey danced several times with his wife, who wore an evening gown of lavender lace.

At the inauguration ceremonies earlier, Tubman, wearing his heavy, gold chain of office and a green sash, dropped to his knees on the platform of Centennial Hall and gave thanks for the many blessings he said had been bestowed on his nation.

Traditionally close to the United States since becoming Africa's first independent state in 1847, Liberia now has about $360 million in American investments in its rubber plantations and iron mines. To the corporation executives at the inaugural, Tubman said that he would continue his nation's open door investment policy and encourage free enterprise.

Tubman's sixth straight term was won last May without opposition under his one-party system.

The Liberian stop was the second in a nine-nation African swing for Humphrey. Before leaving for Accra, Ghana, Wednesday, the vice president planned to visit American-trained Liberian armed forces units, a junior high school and Liberia's national cultural center.

Sen. Morse Questions Moral Role

DETROIT (UPI) — The United States had better win the Vietnam war or "the verdict of the world would make the Nuremburg trials insignificant," Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said yesterday.

Morse, an outspoken critic of the Johnson administration's handling of the war, said, "I am shocked at how we can walk out on all our moral ideals in connection with the way we're prosecuting this war.

"We'd better win it, because . . . only defeated nations are tried."

Morse spoke during a locally taped television interview.

Unless the American people get rid of the notion that the United States can control the world militarily, Morse warned, "we are on our way to a war with China."

Morse said the United States could not defeat China in an air war, even with nuclear weapons. A war with the Red Chinese would require the deployment of three million American troops in China in three years, he said.

"No President has the right to send a single American boy to his death in a war that is undeclared," Morse said.

Bad Weather, Good Driving —Toll Down

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New Year holiday weekend death toll was below advance estimates and a National Safety Council spokesman today gave credit for the improvement to bad weather and good driving.

The total reached 355 in a count that began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended last midnight. The safety council predicted earlier that 460 to 540 persons would die in traffic accidents over the 78-hour period.

"There is nothing immutable about the death rate," a spokesman for the council said. "We don't have to just accept it."

"The major reason we believe is that the behavior of drivers must have changed," the spokesman said. "How it changed, we don't know."

"Weather certainly was a consideration, too," he said. Record-breaking cold and heavy snow in some sections apparently kept some persons at home.

Ex-Dodd Aide Tells Of FBI Driving Chores

NEW YORK (AP) — James P. Boyd, former assistant of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has written that the FBI, in return for speeches praising the bureau and its chief, J. Edgar Hoover, made its agents available to Dodd as chauffeurs and private detectives.

In an article in the Jan 13 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Boyd says that when Dodd was traveling across the country "U.S. immigration officers and on occasion FBI agents were pressed into service as chauffeurs at various times."

"On at least one occasion," Boyd wrote, "FBI agents in New York City were detailed as chauffeurs to drive Dodd around on social calls. I knew, too, that the FBI at times made its agents available to Dodd as private detectives, to tail members of his staff who have incurred his suspicion."

Boyd also wrote that Dodd told him during the 1964 Democratic national convention that he would "have run a mile" from the party's nomination for vice president.

Boyd said Dodd made the remark after President Johnson had selected Hubert H. Humphrey as his running mate. The senator had been reported under consideration for second spot on the ticket.

Economy Woes

VIENNA (AP) — Antonin Novotny, Czechoslovakia's president and Communist party chief, says the nation may have to borrow a trick or two from capitalism if it is to save its program of economic reform.

Novotny, whose position as leader is reportedly shaky, said yesterday his government "must be able to use everything that is positive...including what has originated in the countries of capitalism."

Counterfeit Ring Caught In Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese national police said today they had arrested several Chinese counterfeiters and seized $250,000 in fake U.S. $5 bills, thereby foiling what they called a Red Chinese attempt to destroy the economies of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Police said the counterfeiters were Red Chinese spies who planned to trade the U.S. bills on the black market to buy equipment to counterfeit the currencies of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

Police reported they closed in on the counterfeiters last Thursday in Cholon, the Chinese section of Saigon, and seized a printing press, paper and ink and complete and incomplete $5 bills. The counterfeiters' printing plates also were seized, they said.

Several persons, including some who tried to escape, were arrested, officials added, but police declined to disclose their names, saying the investigation was continuing. A police statement said, "In the present case, there undoubtedly will be death sentences given to the Chinese counterfeiters."

Assembly Group To Explore Giving Property Tax Break

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The possibility of tax breaks for homeowners will be explored here by two Assembly committees.

Hearings are scheduled Thursday and Friday by the Revenue and Taxation Committee and the Municipal and County Government Committees.

They will consider bills by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, aimed at providing property tax relief.

One of Foran's proposals would change the section of the state constitution requiring that all property be assessed at the same ratio of market value to assessed value.

It used to be that assessors used lower ratios for residential property than for commercial and industrial land.

In 1966, however, the legislature established 25 per cent as the ratio to be used universally.

Thousands of property owners had their taxes increased up to 300 per cent.

One of Foran's bills would allow the use of different assessment ratios, specifically a lower one for most residential property.

A DESPERATE CHARACTER?

When a white Muscovy duck disrupted traffic Sunday on Greenfield Avenue in San Anselmo police were called. The duck waddled away from Patrolmen Robert Alberigi left and Bernard Del Santo, but they finally grabbed it. Police dutifully booked the duck for "resisting arrest and disturbing the peace," and took it to the humane society, after lecturing it on the state vehicle code. The duck's owner was not located.

newly-constructed outpatient's block for post-operative care.

His doctors will close off his specially equipped room to everyone except members of the hospital staff. The only non-medical person expected to see him will be his wife, Eileen, and she will have to wait a few days.

As in Washkansky's case, doctors will maintain a 24-hour watch against an immunity reaction by Blaiberg's own body against the foreign matter now beating in his chest.

In Washkansky's case this natural reaction was combated with treatment by radioactive cobalt and with drugs. It appeared likely the same treatment would be used for Blaiberg.

Barnard's first transplant operation Dec. 3 took seven hours.

A heart transplant operation in New York last month to save a baby failed six hours after surgery.

The man who gave the heart today was from the slums of Cape Town, a smiling good looking young man of mixed parentage who was stricken with a brain hemorrhage yesterday while playing touch football with friends at a beach resort.

A hospital spokesman said tissues and blood of the two men matched "not perfectly, but satisfactorily."

Haupt was sent to the Groote Schuur Hospital soon after 5 p.m. yesterday and by 8:30 p.m. Barnard's 30-man team of surgeons and specialists began their examinations. Their delicate tissue-matching tests lasted until well after midnight.

DRAIN

and an expansion of exports to increase the trade surplus by at least that much.

In outlining the program yesterday at a Johnson City, Tex., news conference, the President revealed the dollar drain this year would reach $3.5 billion to $4 billion—highest in seven years.

Johnson also listed higher Vietnam war costs, more U.S. spending on foreign travel, bigger investments abroad and a smaller gain than expected in the trade surplus.

Preliminary reaction to the plan from Congress seemed cheery with Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., of the Senate-House Economic Committee, calling it "exactly the kind of decisive and comprehensive action the situation called for."

Fowler said the program offers some pain for Americans and will mean the foregoing of some pleasures.

He and other administration officials have in the past consistently ruled out a tax on departing tourists as one way to close the travel gap which during 1967 reached an estimated 2 billion, a record.

This type of restriction, however, would be up to Congress which likely would think twice about it in an election year.

Controls on investment overseas would supplant a voluntary program and cut the deficit by 1 billion, bringing total investment down from $5 billion in 1967 to $4 billion.

A tightening of voluntary controls on bank lending abroad would save another $500 million.

Meanwhile the dollar moved up strongly in both London and Paris in the wake of Johnson's bid to get U.S. foreign accounts out of the red.

A presidential envoy in a whirlwind visit to London gave the British government a detailed explanation of Johnson's move to slash the dollar drain and then flew on to Bonn for talks with Willy Brandt, West German foreign minister.

U.S. Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach had arrived before dawn from Washington at the head of a mission sent to brief European governments on the implications of the monetary measures.

SLAYING

Green found bloody clothing in the bedroom and a 12-inch butcher knife wrapped in bloody bedding on the bedroom floor. Bloody bedding also lay inside the bathtub in the bathroom.

Dr. Walter Rappaport, Oakland psychiatrist, was called to examine Mrs. Goodson.

During the interrogation, Mrs. Goodson bolted from the room and ran out of the police station into the parking area, where a police officer and a matron subdued her. She refused to walk and had to be carried back into the police station.

"I can't do it myself," she screamed at one point. "Somebody shot me." When the matron called to her, she shouted, "I'm not Mary. I don't have a name." She refused to walk back into the interrogation office, saying "I'm a worm. Let me crawl."

Asst. Dist. Atty. Leonard A. Shaw said that when he talked to her "she was unemotional," understanding his questions and giving rational answers.

The body of the boy was taken to Harry M. Williams Mortuary in San Rafael.

"They appeared happy at Christmas and everything seemed normal. The children were always well behaved and well cared for," he said.

Mrs. Goodson's other children were today in the custody of the former husband.

Asked about an Associated Press poll of legislators that showed he might be forced to accept withholding if he is to get major tax reform, Reagan replied: "Maybe they ought to take a poll of the people."

BLAST

the firefighters were not certain whether dousing the flames would help release this gas and did not want to act without expert advice.

All 236 of the residents of this town 25 miles east of Indianapolis were evacuated when two Pennsylvania line freight trains cracked up. One train apparently hit a broken rail and toppled over on another going in the opposite direction on parallel tracks.

Freight cars piled on top of each other and tank cars containing gasoline, crude oil, ammonia and other dangerous substances sent a concussion of shock waves and a sheet of flame through much of the town.

The blast was spectacular but only three persons were hospitalized. However, at least two homes burned to the ground and the town's only industry, a cannery and fertilizer plant complex, was destroyed. Damage elsewhere was heavy.

WAR

national police shared attention with the war news:

About 300 official U.S. Mission cars were impounded in Saigon because a delay in paperwork by both Americans and Vietnamese held up a reregistration the government had ordered for all such cars by Jan. 1. Mission cars bear "TN" plates, which denote they belong to foreigners. But some, still bearing those plates, have been sold to Vietnamese. The government order was aimed at preventing the Vietnamese owners from evading the annual tax on domestic vehicles.

The police announced they have arrested several Chinese counterfeiters and seized 50,000 fake U.S. $5 bills. They said this broke up a Communist plot to finance a wider counterfeiting of Southeast Asian currency and wreck the economies of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Hanoi, meanwhile, accused the United States of raiding many "populated areas" during the truce. It did not elaborate on what constituted "raids," but said U.S. aircraft had "repeatedly intruded into the airspace" of several provinces.

to use a bolo knife if she didn't return, said the sister.

According to the Sheriff's report, Reymundo gave an ultimatum to his wife.

"I'll give you until Friday," he was reported to have said, "Either you come back to me or else . . ."

Mrs. Stout said that when her sister asked: " . . . or else, what?" the husband replied "You will find out. You had better think it over."

Reymundo was reported to be a bookkeeper with a women's sportswear shop in San Francisco.

The victim's sister reported he was "very jealous" and had introduced his wife only to his Filipino friends.

It was only after deputies had checked with San Francisco late Saturday that Mrs. Stout heard her sister was dead and the husband under arrest.

San Francisco police said they quarreled over "family finances," in the parking lot.

Mrs. Reymundo was a former Reno cashier and the couple were married in Reno in July.

tion, tax reform and preserving the environment, said Storer. "Marin can easily become the showplace of the nation," he said.

"Two hopes for 1968," Storer said, "are to abolish the barbaric practice of capital punishment and peace in Vietnam."

Kettenhofen, apparently criticizing Storer, told his colleagues he would try to be the "neutral coordinator and expeditor" on the board and would not use the chairmanship to push through his personal views.

On streamlining meetings, Kettenhofen declared: "I think we are inclined to allow too much time for discussions and get behind on our agenda." He suggested ground rules be set up to limit statements by attorneys, for example, to give both sides equal time. He suggested that some system be worked out to let each supervisor know when the board is about to resume a session after a recess or lunch break so that they will not sit in their offices and hold up the board meeting.

One Poll Gives Nixon GOP Bid; Another Rockefeller

NEW YORK (UPI)—One poll of Republican Party leaders shows former Vice President Richard M. Nixon most likely to get the 1968 GOP presidential nomination but a separate poll shows Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York would be the stronger candidate against President Johnson.

A poll by Newsweek magazine showed Nixon has a commanding lead among potential delegates to the Republican National Convention next August in Miami. The magazine said that if the convention were held today, Nixon would get 561 votes, only 106 short of the 667 needed for the nomination.

The other poll, by The New York Times, indicated party leaders and observers in the 50 states show Rockefeller in an election today would carry states with 378 electoral votes, compared with 100 for Johnson and 60 for former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, who is campaigning as a third party candidate.

The Newsweek survey of delegates put Rockefeller in second place behind Nixon with 363 potential delegate votes. Gov. Ronald Reagan of California had 201 and Gov. George Romney of Michigan, the only declared GOP candidate, had 89. There were 114 undecided votes among governors, state chairmen and leading spokesmen polled in all 50 states.

The Times said its survey showed that in a two-man race Nixon would edge Johnson by "a relatively narrow margin," 271 electoral votes to 267. But with Wallace in the race, Johnson would get 301 votes to 210 for Nixon and 27 for Wallace.

Both publications said their surveys were based on current conditions, on how potential delegates feel now, and made no attempt to consider possible shifts in issues during the seven months remaining before the national conventions.

Fatal Oroville Blast Labeled Self-Destruction

OROVILLE (UPI) — Police today listed as suicide the death of a construction worker who set off a terrific dynamite explosion as he sat in his car early New Year's Day in downtown Oroville.

Officers still were attempting to pin down a specific reason why Harry J. Cox, 39, Oroville, killing himself in such a bizarre fashion.

The blast, which occurred while revelers in taverns nearby welcomed in the New Year, twisted the station wagon into a useless heap, sent tiny hunks of shrapnel rocketing for a block along a downtown street. No one else was hurt.

Police at first believed Cox was murdered. Further investigation showed he sat in the station wagon with the dynamite cradled in his lap and set off the explosion himself with an electrical charge.

A police spokesman said they investigated the possibility the blast was linked with those at Marysville, but they reported no apparent connection.

Pendleton Resigns Vice Mayor's Post

Charles F. Pendleton, vice mayor and a town councilman of Corte Madera since 1961, is scheduled to resign at the council meeting at town hall at 7:30 p.m. today.

Pendleton, whose resignation is effective immediately, is moving to Hollywood to work with a talent agency. He was appointed to the council May 22, 1961, to replace Councilman Roger F. Morse, who moved. In April 1964, Pendleton was elected councilman.

His term expires this year, with municipal election scheduled for April 9. Also expiring is the term of Councilman William W. Collier.

Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher said today the council probably will name a vice mayor from among the councilman, then name an interim councilman until the election.

Pendleton has been sales manager for Radio Station KTIM in San Rafael, joining the station after 17 years with KJBS, San Francisco.

Other council agenda matters tonight include consideration of whether diagonal parking in front of Marin Joe's Restaurant on Casa Buena Drive should continue, and discussion of a proposed connection of Tamalpais Drive and Paradise Drive in East Corte Madera.

Phone Directors Vote To Cancel Merger With ABC

NEW YORK (AP) — Directors of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. have voted unanimously to cancel ITT's agreement for a $2.8 billion merger with the American Broadcasting Companies Inc.

The proposed marger, which would have been the largest in broadcasting history, was fought by the Department of Justice on antitrust and other grounds.

The ITT directors voted yesterday at an unusual New Year's Day meeting, only hours after the Dec. 31 deadline that had been set for either party to withdraw from the two-year-old merger agreement.

The directors cited long delays and indications of more delays in obtaining final approval of the consolidation.

Injuries Minor To Motorcyclist

A Berkeley man escaped with scraped knees yesterday when he was pinned under his motorcycle at China Camp.

Coming down a grade, the motorcycle, driven by Larry Scott Stewart, 28, of Berkeley, hit a tree stump at 1:30 p.m. and flipped over on top of him, he told the California Highway Patrol.

He was treated at Marin General Hospital.

Bartender Denies Any JFK Plotting

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A bartender subpoenaed as a material witness by Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison said today he disliked President John F. Kennedy but denied any knowledge of a conspiracy to kill him.

Loran E. Hall, in a telephone interview with the New Orleans States-Item from his bar in suburban Kernville, Calif., said he felt President Kennedy "should have been removed from office — by ballot, not by bullet."

Hall also said he will not return voluntarily to New Orleans, where Garrison want to question him in connection with the controversial probe of what Garrison says was a plot which resulted in Kennedy's assassination in Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963.

But if a court order is issued in California to extradite him, said Hall; "I naturally will go to New Orleans. I have absolutely nothing to hide."

Hall, who Garrison says was associated with Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby in Dallas, said he first saw Ruby "when I, like the rest of America, saw him shoot Oswald on television."

Shoreline Collision Kills Belvedere Man

A Belvedere man was killed Sunday in a head-on collision on Shoreline Highway, three miles north of Point Reyes Station.

Samuel Beaumont, 31, of 370 Belle Vista, was ejected out the rear of the small sports car while still in the driver's seat, to which he was belted, the California Highway Patrol said.

Beaumont was taken to Marin General Hospital by a county fire department ambulance, where he died shortly after arrival.

Beaumont was the 38th fatality in Marin County automobile accidents in 1967. There were 27 fatalities on county roads in 1966.

Driver of the other car, Charles Oscar Bordessa, 42, of Petaluma, told patrolmen he pulled his southbound car to the right edge of the road to avoid Beaumont's northbound car, which had crossed the double line. The two cars hit head-on in clear weather at 3:20 p.m.

Bordessa and his wife, Janet Marie, 37, and two sons, Gary, 15, and David, 11, were treated for multiple cuts and bruises at West Marin Medical Center.

Beaumont, a boat builder, lived in Marin County five years. He was a native of Belguim. He attended College of Marin and University of California.

Beaumont also designed and built custom furniture which had received awards in Marin Society of Artists crafts shows.

Beaumont was separated from his wife, Ruth, of Larkspur, and is survived by a stepmother, Mrs. Lucy V. Rose of Atlanta, Ga.

Funeral will be held in Atlanta.

Fallon Rustling Case Reported

There may be a cattle rustler in the Fallon area.

A 900-pound, 2-year-old heifer, valued at $200, was taken from his ranch, Francis W. Cornett of Whitaker Bluff Road, reported to sheriff's deputies last week.

Cornett said he didn't believe the heifer strayed away and became lost.

Alleged Club Hazing Due Hearing Tonight

A six-months-old dispute between school officers and members of the Sportsmen's Club at San Rafael high over alleged hazing by club members will be aired tonight in a hearing before the school administration.

Principal Alan Ellsberg said the club had been disciplined on June 9 by the student supreme court for hazing of new members, which allegedly included having to perform "humiliating" calisthenics.

Also cited before the court were acts which included putting of food into initiates' hair and having them "goose step" around the campus.

Hazing is against state and school laws, according to Ellsberg.

After the club was disciplined by having all activities prohibited for a quarter, the group ran into trouble again in November with student officers.

This time they were cited for carrying ut an initiation without a permit from the student congress. The charter of the club, which has a membership of 26 boys, was suspended for the rest of the year.

Members were told not to wear club jackets without first removing identifying emblems from them, and, according to student officials, nine of the boys did not comply.

Ellsberg said a hearing at 7:30 p.m. today in the school library will give club members and their parents, as well as student officers, a chance to air the controversy before school administrators.

Burglars Fail In Safe Try At Greenbrae

Torch-wielding burglars have failed to open a large floor safe at Greenbrae Lanes, 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, but took a color television set and an estimated $500 worth of liquor, Larkspur police said today.

Sgt. Charles J. Mattos said the burglary was discovered at 8:30 a.m. yesterday when an employee, Philip Wallace, arrived at work. No forced entry to the building was found.

Mattos said the five-foot-tall floor safe, located in the office, had its hinges cut off but the door remained locked. The torch and two bottles of gas used by the intruders to operate the torch were left at the scene.

Mattos said the television set and liquor were taken from the bar area. He said he is investigating to see if a torch and other cutting equipment stolen in San Anselmo from Marvin A. Dobson of 2 Olive Avenue were the ones used by the burglars. The theft occurred Sunday.

Sausalito Fire Leads To Marijuana Dragnet

Two adults and four juveniles were booked on a variety of marijuana charges Sunday after Sausalito police discovered what appeared to be a small-scale drug factory in an apartment house hit by fire.

Police checked an adjoining apartment for fire damage early Sunday after fire caused an estimated $8,000 damage to the second story apartment of Marva Woodbury at 206 Caledonia Street.

SUSPICIOUS ODOR

The next apartment was undamaged, but patrolman Stephen Willis reportedly noticed a strong smell of marijuana, then discovered quantities of suspected marijuana, pills and assorted paraphernalia used with narcotics.

Chief Edward S. Kreins and Capt. James Wright went through the apartment and reportedly found marijuana in boxes, plastic bags and rolled cigarettes, 1,000 empty gelatin capsules, scales, more than 600 capsules containing two kinds of unidentified green powder, and pipes used for smoking drugs. The marijuana totaled less than two pounds, Kreins said.

Police staked out the apartment for approximately 12 hours and took 16 persons into custody for questioning, eight adults and eight juveniles. Five adults and three juveniles were released pending further investigation.

The 16 included three Redwood High School students and juveniles or young adults from Kentfield, Larkspur, Corte Madera, San Geronimo, Forest Knolls and Sausalito, Kreins said.

Booked at county jail were Morris Tombler, 24, of 31 Orange Street, Larkspur, and Patrick Weatherwax, 22, Forest Knolls.

TWO POST BAIL

Tombler was held in lieu of $625 bail for investigation of possessing narcotics paraphernalia. He was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Weatherwax posted $1,250 bond to appear in Marin Municipal Court at 1:30 p.m. Thursday on a charge of possession of marijuana.

A third youth, Randy Hugh Holt, 18, of 631 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, was booked at Marin County Jail for traffic warrants totaling $41. Tombler was also held for $35 worth of outstanding San Francisco traffic warrants. Holt posted the $41 and was released.

Four juveniles were booked into juvenile hall for possession of marijuana and one also was charged with possessing narcotics paraphernalia.

Kriens said a warrent will be sought today for the man believed to be renting the apartment. He said several people were seen leaving the apartment after the fire started at 3:20 a.m. Sunday.

Novato Youth Is Burned By Hurled Gas

An unknown assailant threw a burning paper cup of gasoline on a 12-year-old Novato boy, setting his pants on fire at 4:45 p.m. Saturday, police reported.

David Bryan Mauroni, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merl D. Mauroni of 70 Summers Drive, was treated for second degree burns on his right leg at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael. His father reported that he was in fair condition today.

David and Michael Eugene Phillips, 11, of 20 Elmwood Court, Novato, and Scott Frank Ross, 13, of 15 Summers Drive, Novato, were crossing a lot north of the Yellow Cab Co. at 1010 First Street when the gasoline was hurled at them, police said.

The three rolled David on the ground to try to extinguish the flames, but were unsuccessful. With David's trousers still aflame, the three then ran about 40 feet to a rest room of Anderson International Auto Sales at First Street and Grant Avenue, where the flames were doused with water.

None of the three boys saw who threw the gasoline, police reported.

Merl Mauroni is the chief building inspector for the City of Novato.

Vatican Fears Asia War Spread, Pleads For End To Bomb Raids

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI has expressed concern that the Vietnam war will spill into Cambodia, Thailand and Laos and wreck progress toward peace, Vatican sources said today.

The sources said the Pope referred to the possibility of war in Vietnam's neighboring countries when he said in a New Year's address that "terrible obstacles arise to complicate" the search for peace.

Not long after the papal address a leading Roman Catholic cardinal said in Bologna, Italy, that the church must ignore criticism and demand that the United States stop bombing North Vietnam.

In Paris, President Charles de Gaulle praised Pope Paul as an "apostle of peace in a universe stained with blood and scandalized by absurd conflicts."

The 70-year-old pontiff said yesterday he felt the way was still open for a negotiated peace in Vietnam but he added there was a feeling of frustration over "difficulties which oppose the securing of peace."

He added that he "would wish to ward off the tremendous disaster of a spreading war, an endless war..."

He did not mention Cambodia, Thailand or Laos by name but the sources said he had them in mind and there were indications papal diplomats in Southeast Asia were working to keep the war from spreading.

Giacomo Cardinal Lercaro, the archbishop of Bologna who has been considered a candidate for the papacy in the past, said in a sermon yesterday, that the church must insist on an end to the bombing of North Vietnam "even though this may displease some people."

"The church cannot be neutral in the face of evil, from wherever it comes," he said.

The 76-year-old cardinal added that the issue of the bombing is "today's immediate problem of conscience, the first crossroads from where events can take the happiest or the most tragic turn."

De Gaulle praised the pontiff during his annual New Year's reception for Paris diplomats.

The French leader said his country would "adhere completely" to the Pope's plea that the first day of every year be designated a "day of peace," and he added that Pope Paul was "The apostle of peace in a universe stained with blood and scandalized by absurd conflicts."

He said the Vietnam war and the Middle East crisis were "The principle obstacles to what should be the world's work at the moment."

Army Of Lawmen Subdues Dope Addicts' Fiery Riot

NORCO (AP) — Drug addicts rioted at the California Rehabilitation Center for six hours today, setting fire to four buildings and battling 30 law enforcement officers.

Officers said about 1,800 of 2,000 male inmates were involved.

Eight persons including four inmates and four officers were reported injured.

The rioting continued for six hours, starting shortly before midnight, but then subsided.

Capt. Ralph Woodworth of the Riverside County sheriff's office said that by 7 a.m. most of the rioters had been herded into an outdoor athletic field, then were returned to their dormitories.

Several hundred still were roaming the premises, however.

During the rioting inmates threw rocks, bottles and other objects at officers and firemen, and set fire trucks ablaze.

Phil Guthrie of the California Department of Corrections estimated fire damage at $250,000.

There are 300 women housed at the center but they were not involved, said the center's business manager, A. R. Todd.

Guthrie said one group of inmates was halted as they tried to break into the women's dormitories. Fires broke out thereafter.

Supt. Roland Wood said he believed the riot may have developed from "a New Year's celebration which got out of hand." But Guthrie said it may have been sparked by a disagreement between men in two dormitories.

The center, covering 91 acres and about 60 miles east of Los Angeles, has 67 buildings which formerly made up a naval hospital and a resort hotel. There are no cells.

Addicts are committed to the center by civil courts for minimum periods of six months.

Forestry units from nearby Riverside, Perris and Corona aided guards and firemen in dousing the flames.

The small army of law enforcement officers included California Highway patrolmen, sheriff's officers from Riverside and San Bernardino counties and police from Corona, Ontario, Fontana and Montclair.

Newsman Given Saigon Ouster

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government has refused to renew the visa of Newsweek magazine's Saigon bureau chief, Everett Martin, and told him to leave the country within seven days.

The South Vietnamese government has been at odds with Martin for months because of Newsweek articles critical of the South Vietnamese army.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More than 64,000 persons have registered for the Peace and Freedom Party, says a spokesman for the antiwar organization attempting to get on the California primary ballot.

Sherman Pearl, 32, said that as of New Year's Day, the party was less than 2,000 registrants away from the 66,059 needed for the party to be placed on the state ballot.

Pearl said the group would concentrate on college campuses today.

Registrations will be valid only if turned in by midnight.

Fog Snarls Traffic, Fliers; Due To Fade

The gray, gooey fog that caused traffic accidents in Marin and covered the Central Valley was expected to clear by tomorrow, except in some inland areas.

Fog closed the Marin County Airport at Novato on Sunday and Monday mornings and this morning, but did not stop traffic at Hamilton Air Force Base.

The California Highway Patrol reported six persons injured in accidents attributed to limited visibility or slippery road conditions.

At 4:30 p.m. yesterday, James S. Duncan of 313 Holly Drive, San Rafael, missed the Marinwood St. Vincent Drive off-ramp from Highway 101, the patrol said. His car entered an exit lane and hit a guard rail. His wife, Lulu, 56, a passenger, was reported in good condition today at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital with face cuts and a possible head injury.

On mist-slickened Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, cars driven by Allen R. Scholl, 25, of 316½ South Morningsun Avenue, Mill Valley, and Judy A. Hessler, 28, of San Francisco, collided a quarter-mile west of Lagunitas at 5:35 p.m. Sunday.

Miss Hessler, a teacher in the Lagunitas School District, was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruises on her left elbow and face. Her passenger, Ted Kregoski, 27, of Castro Valley, was treated for a scraped forehead and chest bruises.

Also on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, a half-mile west of Fairfax, a car driven by Katherine M. Rasonsky, 50, of 5 Barranca Road, Forest Knolls, hit a slippery wet spot on the road, rolled over and went down a 10-foot embankment at 10 p.m. Sunday, patrolmen reported.

Mrs. Rasonsky was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital, San Rafael, for cuts and bruises. Her son, David, 14, a passenger, was treated for a head cut and sore neck.

At 10:10 p.m. Sunday, a car driven by John F. Schmidt, 37, of 277 Scenic Road, Fairfax, hit a light pole off Highway 101 south of the Alto pedestrian overpass, patrolmen said. He was treated for face cuts at Marin General Hospital.

Slightly warmer temperatures, with a high of about 50, were predicted tomorrow. The low tonight will be 35 to 45 degrees, the Weather Bureau said.

The weatherman said gentle winds which caused the fog are expected to turn to the northwest and blow the fog away.

Another Public Hearing Is Set On Park Proposal

A proposal to create a no-cost park in Corte Madera through dump and fill operation will get another public airing at the Co-Op shopping complex in Corte Madera at 8 p.m. Jan. 22.

The Marin County Department of Parks and Recreation will make its presentation in the meeting room of the co-op building on Tamal Vista Boulevard.

Parks Director Pierre W. Joske first presented the no-cost park idea at the Corte Madera City Council on Nov. 20. Joske's proposal is to use 250 acres of marshland north of San Clemente Creek for sanitary land fill operation, and develop a park and recreation area with the free revenue.

A rendering of the park is on exhibit in the educational hall of the shopping complex.

$1 Million Worth Of Carpet Up In Flames

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A million dollars worth of carpeting was destroyed yesterday in a warehouse fire that investigators suspect was set by someone who ransacked files and desks before the blaze.

Robert Salame, co-owner of the Boston Rug Co., said about one million yards of carpeting was a total loss, most of it by water damage.

Two Leave Bridge Leap Evidence

Two persons are believed to have jumped to their deaths off the Golden Gate Bridge over the weekend, the California Highway Patrol said.

The contents of a purse found at midspan at 2 p.m. Saturday tentatively identified one as Ann Bernstein Brown, 30, of Berkeley, a native of Minnesota.

A book of poems in her purse was marked open near a poem called "High Diver" and one entitled "Swimmer."

A search by two Coast Guard patrol boats failed to recover a body.

On Sunday, patrolmen reported finding a vacant car parked midspan on the bridge at 2:30 a.m., with a suicide note addressed to "Tony" inside.

The car was registered to Byron William Crawford, 21, of Tustin, Orange County.

A Coast Guard search for Crawford's body was called off because of poor visibility.

Inmate At Quentin Is Still At Large

Richard Lynn Shepherd, 27-year-old convict serving a five to 15-year sentence, was still at large today after walking away from his construction job outside the wall at San Quentin Prison Saturday.

Associate Warden James W. L. Park said Shepherd was discovered missing from his outside dormitory quarters at 11:20 p.m. Saturday. He was sentenced from Orange County for assault on a peace officer with a deadly weapon and had served four and a half years of his term.

San Quentin Lifers Deny Zip Gun Murder

Terry K. Campbell, 22, and Clifford Jefferson, 41, pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity in Marin Superior Court today to charges stemming from the zip gun murder of another San Quentin inmate Feb. 24.

The two convicts, both serving life sentences for other murders, were transferred to Judge Joseph G. Wilson's court for setting of a trial date.

The two are accused of assaulting Ronald Thomas Roberts with a deadly weapon, a death penalty offense.

Roberts, of Los Angeles, was due for parole in 65 days when someone shot him in the head through the bars of his cell. Autopsy showed he was killed with a slug cut from an iron rod and fired from a zip gun.

Jefferson also asked that he be allowed to plead innocent by reason of double jeopardy, claiming the prison disciplinary committee had punished him in connection with the slaying.

Judge Harold J. Haley denied that plea, saying the disciplinary committee proceedings are not regarded as a trial.

William O. Weissich, attorney for Campbell, said he will file a motion to secure a separate trial for his client.

Wife Is Held For Husband's Slaying

TROWBRIDGE (UPI) — Mrs. Patricia Pritchett, 29, was held on a murder charge today in the fatal shooting of her husband, Purl, 29, during a family quarrel early New Year's Day.

Sutter County Sheriff's Deputies said Mrs. Pritchett's father, Viscon Dooley, 61, collapsed and died of an apparent heart attack following the shooting at his home near here. 6

Commute Party

SEATTLE (AP) — One of the movingest New Year's parties was held aboard the ferry Illahee. The party, complete with noise-makers, paper hats, candelabra, food, drink and tape-recorded music, was held by eight commuters who sit together throughout the year on the 35-minute trip from Bainbridge Island.

Chaker Re-Trial Planned In April

Another jury trial for Dr. Henry Chaker, accused of overcharging county welfare patients, was tentatively set today for the week of April 8 in Marin Superior Court.

A jury considering the charges reported itself unable to reach a decision Dec. 21, after nine hours of deliberation.

The former Novato physician, now living at Shell Beach, San Luis Obispo County, is charged with grand theft.

Deep Steam Wall-to-Wall Carpet Cleaning

This unique new process cleans deep and yet treats the finest carpet with loving care . . .

DEEP STEAM removes soil from both the pile of the carpet and the carpet backing. Since no brushes or scrubbing action is used, there is no distortion of the carpet pile. The powerful extraction action of the DEEP STEAM process lifts matted pile to "like new" appearance. The need for frequent professional cleaning is reduced because deeply embedded soil is removed and leaves no residue in the carpet fibers to collect dirt. During this cleaning operation every fiber is coated with a SOIL RETARDANT to keep your carpet clean longer.

The old equipment with brushes, using liquid detergent or powder, scrubs the soil DEEPER into the fabric . . . and even with the help of a vacuum fails to remove soil or residue. The detergent or powder left in the fabric soon attracts more soil and it is not long before the soil works back to the surface. Soon your carpets appear more soiled than before!

The advantages of DEEP STEAM CLEANING are obvious!

THIS DEEP STEAM PROCESS IS GUARANTEED TO BE COMPLETELY SAFE ON ALL FABRICS UNDER ALL CONDITIONS!

Labor Council Seeks Bus Service For Marin City Students Afoot

Tamalpais High School students from Marin City, who travel to school on a catch-as-can basis because they can't afford the 60 cents daily bus fare, now have an application for a $19,338 grant going for them.

The Marin County Labor Council has applied to the San Francisco Foundation for the grant to provide free transportation to and from school for Marin City students.

'SEVERE BURDEN'

Charles B. Weers, president of the council, said the daily bus cost for each child in high school is a "severe economic burden" on families in the low-income category.

The project would provide jobs for residents and permit flexibility in scheduling and stops not available under the existing service, he said.

Weather permitting, students walk more than two miles to school, some "over the hill" to Tamalpais Valley and along Shoreline Highway, and others to Waldo Point and then along the Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks, reported Frank A. Cassou, business director of Tamalpais High School District.

SOME HITCH

Some hitchhike on main thoroughfares, "risking pick-ups by undesirable divers, citations by the police, or no pick-ups at all," Weers noted.

There are about 165 high school students in Marin City, but the Tamalpais High School District doesn't provide bus service. The district's policy is not to provide transportation where there is an existing service, in this case Western Greyhound Lines, Cassou explained.

In its application the labor council said the grant would provide transportation to and from school each regular school day during the spring and fall semesters in 1968.

LATE RIDES

It also would provide a late afternoon pick-up service for students who participate in after-school activities such as athletics, dramatics and music or library study.

There also would be a home and return service for students attending the six-week summer session.

The foundation is scheduled to act on the application Feb. 1. If it approves the grant the council said it would contract immediately with Herbert Wade, formerly of Marin City and now living in Tamalpais Valley, to provide the service.

Casey Jones was John Luther Jones, employed in the 1890s on the Illinois Central Railroad.

Five servicemen rented the plane in Mobile, Ala., Sunday to fly to New Orleans after missing a commercial flight. The two-engined Beechcraft, piloted by William M. Reed of Mobile, crashed into the lake two miles from shore.

Three bodies were recovered from 15 feet of water yesterday.

ON THE AGENDA

Three Generations Of Family Find B'nai B'rith Unit Work Inspiring

So often it's a family affair when it comes to working in a charitable organization or club, and B'nai B'rith Women is a good example in many Marin homes. Chapter 266 is proud of the fact that it currently has three generations active and working on its Bells Are Ringing membership campaign.

Charter member and past president of the chapter Mrs. Jacob Greenfield of San Anselmo is serving as fund-raising and membership retention chairman for the chapter. She is a past president of the Central California Conference of Chapters.

Her daughter, Mrs. Sam Goldbaum of San Anselmo, is currently the treasurer of her chapter. She is a past president of Marin chapter also, and of the Greater San Francisco Council and past executive board member of District Four.

And her daughter, Janis Goldbaum, past president of B'nai B'rith Girls in Marin, is the corresponding secretary of her chapter. To complete the family picture, Mr. Greenfield is past president of Marin Lodge 1327 of B'nai B'rith.

MARIN MEMBERS of the Smith College Clubs of San Francisco and the Bay Area are planning to attend the dinner Jan. 29 at the Bohemian Club in honor of Smith College president Thomas C. Mendenhall and Mrs. Aubrey Morgan, who is chairman of the board of the college and the daughter of the late Ambassador Dwight Morrow.

THE EXCITEMENT of meeting world-famed designer Mollie Parnis in one of her rare personal appearances is in store for Marin LARC (Ladies Aid of Retarded Children) members Jan. 22 at the Mark Hopkins Hotel. The public also may attend the LARC fashion luncheon, which will show the spring collection by Parnis, who has gained fame as fashion stylist for several of America's First Ladies, including Lady Bird Johnson.

MRS. HARRY F. TALBOT JR., state chairman of leadership development for the California Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak at the assembly of Golden Gate District, CFWC, comprising Marin, San Francisco and San Mateo counties, on Monday at the Red Chimney, Stonestown, San Francisco.

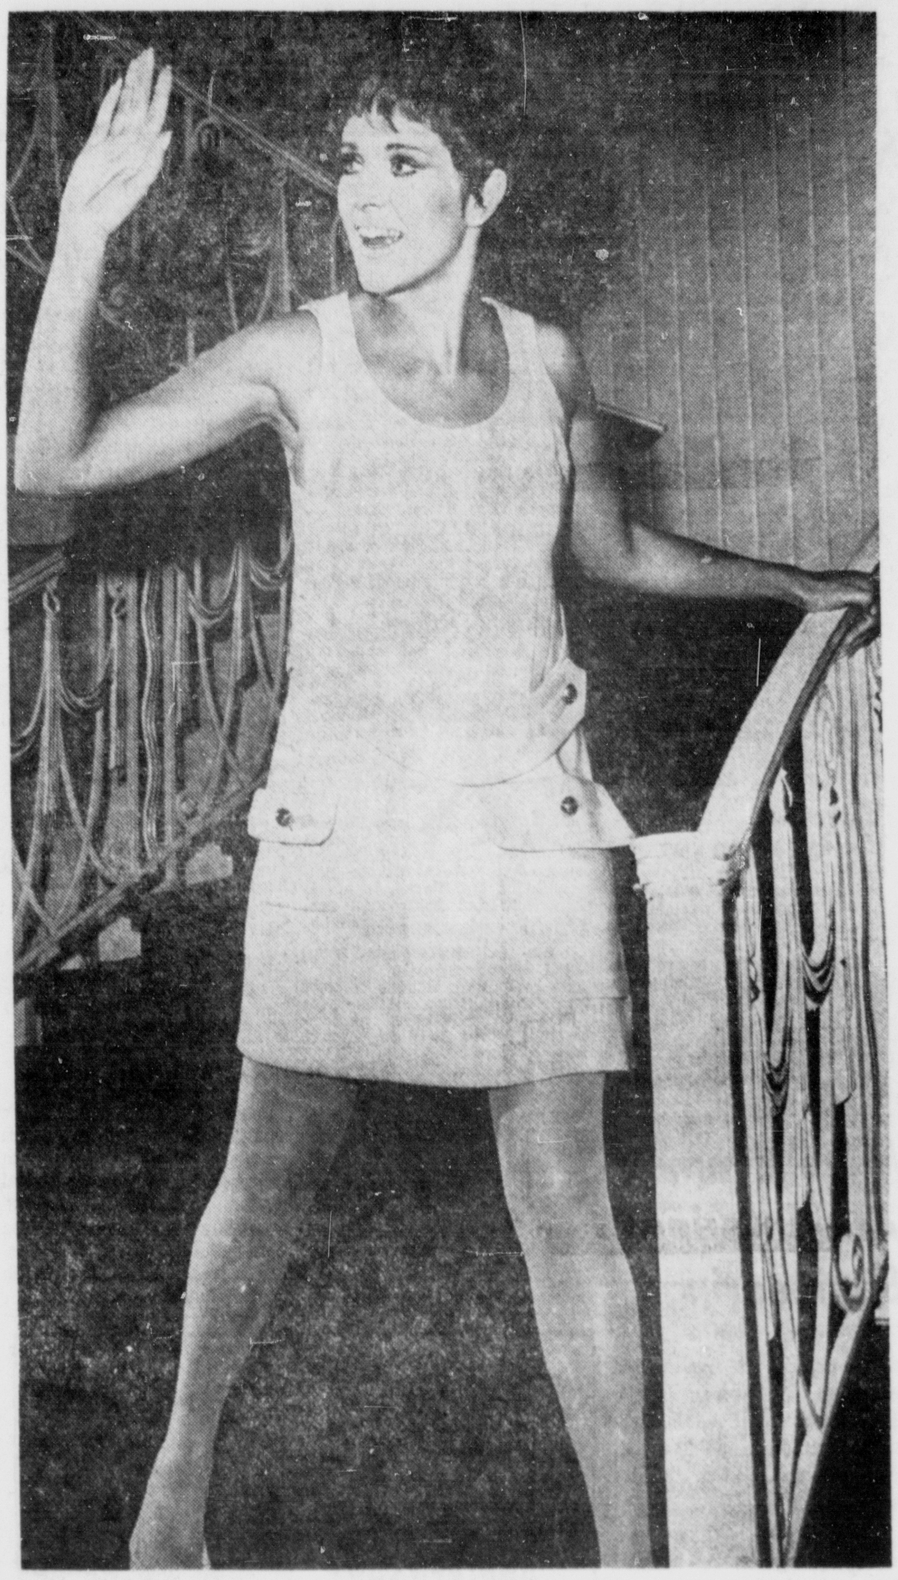
The meeting will open at 10 a.m. with Mrs. Arthur Luchetti of Corte Madera presiding.

Presidents from the nine Marin County Federated Clubs — Mrs. John Conkle, Corte Madera Women's Improvement Club; Mrs. Dallas B. Pack, Novato Federated Women's Clubs; Mrs. Relsa De Pietro, Fairfax Women's Clubs; Mrs. A. M. Komora, Tamalpais Centre Woman's Club; Mrs. Carlotta Thomas, Larkspur Women's Club; Mrs. Peter Obninsky, Marin Women's Legislative Council; Mrs. Paul Hurd, Outdoor Art Club; Mrs. Arie Slikkerveer, Sausalito Woman's Club, and Mrs. Claude Bassellieu, San Rafael Improvement Club, will represent their memberships.

Also attending are district chairmen Mesdames George R. Chapman, Sausalito, conservation; Beth Kessler, Corte Madera, libraries and literature; Conrad T. Kett, Sausalito, scholarships; Paul A. Hammer, San Anselmo, drama and speech; Richard Dayton Hardin, San Rafael, music; Albert Heston, Larkspur, historian; Michael O'Toole, Novato, pins and emblems; and Donald Denton, Larkspur, who is reservations chairman for Marin.

District officers from Marin in addition to Mrs. Luchetti are Mrs. George Entwistle of Corte Madera, third vice president, and Mrs. Lewis E. DeuPree of Ross, treasurer. Mrs. Luchetti invites all members of the Marin County federated clubs to attend the meeting.

ON THE AGENDA is the Marin Women Section's new column to keep readers up-to-date on women's organization news and activities and the people behind them. Press chairmen may submit club news to their nearest I-J office — San Rafael, Novato, Mill Valley and Tiburon — in advance of upcoming events.



'ISN'T THIS WHERE I CAME IN?'

The look of the '30s is back again for spring, say American designers, who are holding fashion press week in New York beginning today. Above, the call of the '30s was evident in the Geoffrey Beene collection which included this short evening dress with sequinned tanker top and feathered skirt. And at right, the bodice is again similar to the tanker top in this dress with the young movement for the David Styne Juniors collection. Done in a brilliant yellow linen, the dress is short, and has a swinging wide belt attached at the sides with little gold buttons. Two patch pockets, one large and one small, complete the design. Flying With Fighting Men To Vietnam – Another World

Now a stewardess with an airline flying troops to Vietnam and Thailand, Lois Sens is a former I-J women's section staff writer.

By LOIS SENS

Every day thousands of American soldiers are transported by air from bases on the West Coast to spots in the news — such as Guam, Bangkok, Saigon, Okinawa and Tokyo — in a matter of a dozen or so hours. Similarly, our fighting men are returned to this country in an even shorter time, East to West winds prevailing.

Facilitating this around the clock operation since the discontinuation of Military Air Transport Service, are civilian crews on commercial airlines.

AS A STEWARDESS on one such carrier, Seaboard World Airlines, I've had a chance to observe this operation first hand.

Our DC-8F's leave Travis Air Force Base approximately every 20 hours carrying 165 military personnel or dependents. This month we're flying the South Pacific route — five hours to Honolulu, seven to Guam and from there another two or three or five hours to Okinawa, the Philippines, Vietnam, Thailand or Japan.

ONE HUNDRED sixty-five grim-faced young men boarded our flight at Travis the last trip. It was 1:30 a.m. on a December day, freezing cold and blustery. We tried our tired old jokes — but had little response. These boys were going to Bien Hoa and they knew what they were getting into. Many of them refer to Vietnam as "that bad place."

Shortly after takeoff, 164 of them fell into a deep sleep. Only one seemed to be keeping watch. He, too, soon drifted off and we were able to waken only a small percentage for our snack service. One soldier subsequently explained they'd spent the previous night at the drafty Oakland terminal.

After several crew-rest overnight stops enroute, we picked up a trip to Cam Ranh Bay. We landed at 2300 hours and looked for signs of night conflict, but there were none. All was quiet and large buses picked up the deplaning troops. We hitched a ride into the operations building — walking isn't permitted — and dug our heels in some of the powdery sand. We were told Cam Ranh Bay has beautiful sandy beaches for relaxation and rest periods. "Come to Vietnam" the poster read, "vacation spot of Southeast Asia!"

ON ANOTHER FLIGHT we landed at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport, again at night. Flares were set off in all directions and we were told these are used every 30 seconds all night long to prevent night attacks.

Thai International Airlines and Air Vietnam schedule flights through this airport daily.

On the return flight from Bangkok to Saigon we had only 13 deplaning. The other 152 were on their way home to the States after a year's tour of duty in Thailand. They wore big grins and many obviously-new gold watches. All of the men had deep tans and appeared very, very tired.

There was a distinctly audible sigh of relief as our DC-8 lifted off the runway at Bangkok Airport. It's only an hour's ride to Saigon and as we descended we noticed the snaking Mekong River. The area resembles Louisiana with its muddy Mississippi and thick green terrain. The Mekong Delta has high grass and what appears to be pleasant-looking patchquilt farmland. We glided over red tile roofed houses, and oil refinery on the river with ships steaming in. A low flying fighter jet streaked by, then a helicopter fluttered down below and the lush green land laced with river and canals was seen. Nothing indicated a battleground, only sampans, riverboats and corrugated tin quonset military buildings.

ON THE GROUND the Air Vietnam hostesses appeared in their turquoise silk costumes, welcoming passengers on the scheduled flights.

After an hour's time on the ground, during which none of the soldiers was allowed to leave the plane, we took off directly to about 5,000 feet, then turned in the direction of Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. After announcing that a chicken dinner would be served, we were rewarded with applause.

As we fly these boys home to their families, we experience mixed emotions. One outstanding is that of pride in the job they're doing for us.

Their difficulty in doing so is

Population Of Europeans Is Now Steadied

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (WMNS) — While world population soars, Europe's population remains constant, with a replacement rate of about one per cent. Why?

According to Dr. David Glass, University of London sociology professor, some of the reasons seem to be increased availability of birth control, higher levels of education, working wives and the declining influence of religious background.

Although in Britain, Eire, Scandinavia and other Northern European countries people are marrying at earlier ages, this is offset by increased use of contraceptives and abortion, and "a different willingness to have children," Dr. Glass noted.

With increased ability to control fertility and family size large families are less common, and Europeans are tending toward the two- and three-child family, he said.

In Britain, as in the United States, the influence of religion is declining. A study referred to by the professor showed that "substantial proportions of Catholic couples in Britain are using birth control methods."

More Women Are Entering Engineering

NEW YORK (UPI) — Too many women are ignoring a profession one woman in the field calls "creative, intellectually stimulating and financially rewarding." The field—engineering.

Less than 5,000 of the nation's one million engineers are women, "at a time when the nation faces a shortage of engineers and technically trained personnel," says Mrs. Anna Longobardo. She is research section head for a gyroscope company and spells out the future for women in engineering in a "Job Horizons Series" from the New York State Department of Commerce. A survey of the Society of Women Engineers showed that more than 44 per cent of its members earn over $10,000 a year, and there are many in the $15,000-$25,000 category.

Church Leader Is Organizer Of A Group For Young Wives

MRS. GERALD FRANK

People are the main interest of Mrs. Gerald Frank, new president of Episcopal Churchwomen of the Church of Our Saviour, Mill Valley.

She recently was instrumental in organizing a young wives' group at the church, and hopes in her new role to create more opportunities for relationships between the women of the church to increase their contributions to church life.

The young Mill Valley woman has been active in the group four years, serving as luncheon chairman, membership chairman and ways and means chairman. As president, she looks forward to a year highlighted by the Marin County Antiques Show and Sale in April, the organization's principal fund-raiser.

Mrs. Frank is also active in the Parent-Teacher Association of Marin Terrace School, which she has served as vice president, membership chairman and program chairman. However, she still finds time for her favorite leisure activities, tennis, painting and gourmet cooking.

A native Californian who grew up in Vallejo, Arlene met her husband while she was at Vallejo Junior College and he was attending the California Maritime Academy. He is now an engineer with Westinghouse Electric Company. They have three children, Suzanne, 7; Stacy, 6, and Paul, 4. The family has lived in Mill Valley five years.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Flaming Youth Attracts Moth Who May Get Her Wings Singed

DEAR HELEN:

I don't know why I like this guy. He's everything I hate. He smokes, drinks, drives like a demon, and his forward passes aren't with a football. So I've heard — I've never dated him. He doesn't even know me.

When I'm near him I don't want to leave and when I'm not near him I wish I were. How can I be so dumb? — HOPELESSLY SHY

DEAR HOPELESS:

Why does a moth fly into a flame?

Almost every shy girl dreams about the swinger she'll tame with true, undying love. Luckily she hardly ever gets the chance (except in old movies). Go ahead and dream a bit, honey — it's part of growing up; but stay clear. Singed wings hurt!—H.

DEAR HELEN:

We are three girls who don't like to go to parties and dances, or join clubs. Our parents are pressuring us to "belong," and we hate it.

We are not at ease with crowds and we don't feel right with the kids our parents want us to know. We are all a little on the heavy side. We'd rather be off by ourselves than with this society stuff, fighting for boy friends, and things.

Should parents try to run our lives for us? — THE THREE

DEAR THREE:

Don't knock your parents for wanting you happy. Perhaps they realize more than you admit: that you won't mix because you're afraid of being rejected. Be very honest with yourselves. Then, if you still prefer your Three Musketeers life, I'll go along with you. The world needs non-conformists. (And frankly, I'm not much for society and clubs either.)—H.

DEAR HELEN:

This is to girls who want to know what they should send fellows over in Vietnam.

Send them gifts that will make them laugh, and that they can share with their buddies.

For Christmas last year we sent boxes that contained toy saxophones and harmonicas; a lot of pre-sweetened powdered punch, because this makes the water over there taste better; several decks of playing cards; and a surprise present they could give to a friend who doesn't get much mail.

You must remember that these guys can't carry expensive gifts around with them, or worry about bringing them home; so make them something small, sentimental and useful at the moment.

And also remember that the most important thing to send is the assurance that you care. — KATHY

DEAR HELEN:

This letter is for all those who think there's nothing wrong in heavy petting. Don't you believe it!

I thought this once, until I agreed to try. It wasn't that I was afraid of going all the way. It was a matter of respect for me. Soon I lost all respect for myself and I knew I had lost his. We felt, well, ugly, kind of like little kids experimenting out behind the barn.

After we talked seriously and openly about it, he said he would never try anything again and he hasn't. You don't know how much more at ease I am with myself now I have his respect again. Maybe I was just lucky to get a guy who understood and cared enough about me to listen.

Believe me, when you stop with kissing, you have no regrets. And it's quite easy to stop with kissing, if you don't lead each other on.

—RESPECTED

Michelle Rocca Exchanges Vows With James J. Grossi

MR. AND MRS. JAMES J. GROSSI JR.

Our Lady of Loretto Catholic Church in Novato was the setting for the wedding of Michelle Rocca and James Joseph Grossi Jr., both of Novato, on Dec. 9.

Michelle, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Michael Rocca, wore a floor length gown of Chantilly lace and net skirt with lace and chapel train.

Cecilia Butterworth of San Rafael, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Marianne Farris, Kathy Marzell, Beverly Grossi, the bridegroom's sister, Pam Saffores and junior bridesmaid, Christy Rocca, sister of the bride, all of Novato. They wore Empire gowns of pink satin and lace. Heidi Halter of San Bruno was the flower girl.

A brother of the bridegroom, Ralph Grossi, was best man and ushers were Edward Grossi, a brother, and cousins of the bridegroom Henry Grossi of Marshall, Domingo Grossi of Inverness and George Grossi of Novato. Junior usher was Peter Butterworth, cousin of the bride, of San Rafael.

A reception was held at the Veterans Memorial Hall in Petaluma. The couple went to Squaw Valley, Lake Tahoe and Reno on their wedding trip.

Michelle was graduated from Novato High School and Dental Nurses College of California.

Mr. and Mrs. James Grossi Sr. of Novato are parents of the bridegroom and Mrs. Marie Halter of Penngrove is his grandmother. He was graduated from Petaluma High School and attended California State Polytechnic College. He is associated with his family in the James Grossi Dairy.

Golfing In Calaveras, Marin For New Captain

"Golf is my first interest," says Mrs. Harold L. Burnell of San Rafael, the new captain of the Indian Valley Women's Golf Club in Novato.

She continued, "We (her husband and their two sons, Jeffrey, 18, and Bradley, 14) have a trailer in the Mother Lode country in Calaveras County, and all of us enjoy going up there whenever possible. We like the mountain area and we belong to a golf course, Meadowmont Golf Club. My husband and boys play golf and easily beat me," she says.

Her husband is area service manager for Industrial Equipment and Utilities group of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co.

Among her many other interests are gardening, piano, reading, knitting and cooking.

June Burnell has also been a member of the San Rafael Improvement Club, was active in Boy Scouts, the Red Cross and the Presbyterian Women's Association. She has lived in Marin County since childhood.

June has served as secretary, handicap chairman, and on the rules committee during her eight years as a member of the golf club.

The club plans the Women's Invitational in June and continuation and expansion of the monthly men's and women's mixed tournaments during the year.

Serving with Mrs. Burnell are Mesdames E. E. Korn, co-captain; Roy Evans, tournament chairman; Frances Golden, assistant tournament chairman; Willis Brady, handicap chairman; Charles Royce, assistant handicap chairman; Jack Weese, secretary; Joel Hamby, treasurer; Charles Vincent, publicity; George Nolan, representative to Pacific Women's Golf Association, and Lew Baysinger, North Bay Women's Golf Association.

FLYING

sometimes brought out rather sharply. Such as the time our cabin lights were turned down low while the passengers slept. One boy awakened to see a tiny white light, a reading lamp, which must have appeared to be a night mortar. He dived immediately into the seat in front of him — to be saved from injury by an alert buddy seated next to him who pulled him to the side.

BIGGEST QUESTION concerning state-side news is, "Are the girls really wearing those miniskirts?"

Do the boys receive those freshly-baked cookies all in one piece? Very seldom, they say. It helps to pack the goodies in popcorn and as one said, "I emjoyed eating the popcorn much more than the cookies."

How do they feel about the Vietnam conflict? Those who are bitter feel it is "a political, economic war." They resent "the long-haired ones" protesting what is a duty to their country.

Most of all, they want to get back to the world they knew and pick up their lives where they left off.

Daniel Smith Claims Bride

The wedding of Diana Lee Kopp of Berkeley and Daniel Upham Smith took place at Northbrae Community Church in Berkeley on Dec. 16.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Paul W. Kopp and the sister of Eugene and Evan Kopp, all of Los Angeles. Diana wore a taffeta and lace gown with train, and her only attendent, Mrs. Wayne Hooper of Los Angeles, wore a full length olive green crepe dress.

Samuel B. Abbott of Berkeley served as best man. Ushers were the bride's two brothers and John Stansbury of Berkeley.

A reception followed the ceremony at the church. After a stay in Bolinas the newlyweds will live in Oakland.

The bride is a graduate of Lynwood High School and Smith College, and received a master's degree this year from the University of California.

Dan is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Rudel Gatov of Kent Woodlands and Fred Smith of San Francisco. He is a graduate of Redwood High School and Princeton University and attends Boalt Hall School of Law at University of California. He is the brother of Mrs. Jane Gunn, Mrs. Barbara Edwins and Kathi Gatov.

Dotting The Eyes With Good Ideas

In the '30s, high and unnaturally slender brown were stylish —not because they looked especially good on the average woman—but simply because of a Hollywood-inspired fad. Today women know that very thin eyebrows make the eyes look smaller, which explains in part why very few women arch their brows too drastically.

Ideally, the brows should arch just above the inner corners of the eyes. When eyes are close-set a few hairs should be plucked from the inmost edges of the brows so that the area above the nose is widened and the eyes have a wider-apart look.

Plucking the brows is easier and less painful if the brows are first prepared by patting on skin freshener. Then the skin can be stretched between two fingers as you ply the tweezers, removing each hair in the direction of its growth. Dab the skin again afterwards with your freshener to close the tiny hair ducts.

Many Chores Slated For Surveyor Finale

PASADENA (UPI) — Surveyor 7, the final robot spacecraft scheduled for a lunar landing before Apollo astronauts fly to the moon, will combine all the scientific devices used by its predecessors in determining whether the lunar crust will hold man's weight.

Scheduled for launch Sunday from Cape Kennedy, Surveyor 7 will aim at the moon's rough southwest highlands.

Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory give the final robot less than a 50-50 chance at making a soft upright landing on its tripod legs because of the landing area's rugged terrain.

SCOOP USES

Surveyor 7 will use its five-inch claw-type digger to scoop as deep as 18 inches into the lunar soil to determine bearing strength, squeeze lunar rocks or clods and even pick up a chemical analyzer box and move it around on the moon's surface.

The maneuvers will be televised to earthbound scientists.

"The only thing after this until a landing by Apollo is a pair of Mariners to be launched in March 1969, and they'll get to Mars in mid-summer," said a JPL spokesman.

TREASURE HOUSE

The entire Surveyor program —four of the first six made successful landings and sent back nearly 70,000 pictures—is described by scientists as a treasure house of information for landing a man on the moon before the end of this decade.

Predecessors to Surveyor were the Ranger series which sent back thousands of pictures as the craft approached the moon before crashing to a splattering death and the lunar orbiters that circled the satellite and transmitted long-range views.

LAUNCH HISTORY

The Surveyor chronology:

Surveyor 1 — landed June 1 1966, carrying a 4 by 6 inch U. S. flag and transmitted more than 10,350 pictures before being turned off for weeks in the minus 250-degree lunar night. It was reawakened and sent another 800 pictures from the Sea of Storms before its batteries failed.

Surveyor 2 — Became a $65 million junk pile crashed on the lunar landscape Sept. 22, 1966 when in its final hours scientists were unable to turn on one of its three control rockets to stop a tumbling somersault in space.

Surveyor 3 — made a successful landing April 19, 1967, on the rubbled surface of the moon's Ocean of Storms. It used its beak-like shovel to penetrate several inches into the moon's topsoil. It also sent back 6,315 pictures.

Surveyor 4—On July 16, 1967, while making a successful approach to the central bay and less than three minutes from a soft landing, Surveyor 4 broke contact with earth. Scientists said it probably exploded.

Surveyor 5—On Sept. 10, 1967 Surveyor 5 made a soft landing, took nearly 19,000 pictures, sampled the soil with its extendable claw and bombarded the surface with radioactive soil analyzer on the Sea of Tranquility. It found the soil an ordinary basalt rock common on earth.

Surveyor 6—Soft landed Nov. 9, 1967, in the Sea of Tranquility and returned more than 30,000 excellent quality pictures. It conducted further soil analysis of the heavily cratered terrain then fired its retrorockets to leap 10 feet high and 8 feet sideways for man's first launch from the lunar surface.

Mystery Writer Named England's Poet Laureate

LONDON (AP) — Cecil Day-Lewis, Britain's new post laureate, puts news events into verse and writes subtle mystery books under another name. He has said his nomination as court poet would not guarantee he'd write court poetry.

"I wouldn't be able to write court poetry," the 63-year-old laureate once said. "I'm not disloyal to the royal family, but I couldn't write that sort of thing. You can only write things that move one."

Things that have moved Day-Lewis have been Sir Francis Chichester's round-the-world solo sail, the landslide disaster at the Welsh village of Aberfan and last year's wreck of the oil tanker Torrey Canyon. The poem about the ill-fated tanker was set to music.

Sources report Day-Lewis still intends to dodge topics that don't move him, although his post requires him to write on state occasions.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson named Day-Lewis yesterday to fill the post left vacant by the death last May of John Masefield at the age of 91. Wilson named Day-Lewis over Robert Graves—whom Day-Lewis called "the best poet in the country"—and over John Betjeman, William Plomer and Edmund Blunden.

If Day-Lewis never pens a line of court verse, however, he will be in good company. Robert Bridges, Masefield's predecessor, never wrote any state-occasion verse.

Other celebrated English poets who have held the post were William Wordsworth, Robert Southey and Alfred Tennyson. The job dates to the 17th century and pays $168 a year plus a $64.80 grant in place of the cask of sherry originally given to laureates.

Day-Lewis is probably best known as Nicholas Blake, mystery writer. His detective stories are intellectual thrillers more than blood-and-thunder epics. They include titles such as "Minutes of Murder" and "The Buried Day."

Day-Lewis started writing mysteries years ago to pay a $240 bill to patch a leaky roof. The Blake mysteries sold so well that he was able to retire as a schoolmaster and, living on mystery earnings, turn to his first love: poetry.

Day-Lewis was born in Ireland in 1904, graduated from Oxford, and published his first poems in 1929. He became a member of the Communist party but broke with it in 1939 and today is a Socialist.

He lives in Greenwich with his second wife, Jill, their two children, two cats and a bird. His first marriage was dissolved in 1951.

Transit Strike Problems Solved

NEW YORK (AP) — The first regular work day of the new year was a happy one for New Yorkers today. They had subway and bus service after weeks of worry about the threat of a transit strike.

As a bonus, they had word from Mayor John V. Lindsay that the Transit Authority said its contract settlement with two unions yesterday would not cause a raise in the 20-cent fare in the "foreseeable future."

The fare had gone up 5 cents as a result of the settlement that ended the crippling 12-day subway and bus strike which started New Year's Day two years ago.

A major feature of the settlement will permit an employee to retire at half pay after 20 years of service if he has reached 50 years of age. The TWU had fought for retirement at half pay after 20 years without any age provision.

Novatan Reports Mail Is Scattered

Condry returned yesterday. The case was turned over to postal inspectors.

DRAMA REVIEW

Interplayers Give Top 'Threepenny'

By KARL BARRON

SAN FRANCISCO — The Interplayers Theater got 1968 off to a rousing start with its New Year's Eve opening of a gutty, totally involved production of "The Threepenny Opera," under the direction of David Lindeman.

Lindeman was staged Bertolt Brecht's version of "The Beggar's Opera" with flowing movement timed to Kurt Weill's music played by Raul Matute on a battered upright piano. Lindeman has his beggars and whores mingling with the audience, even at intermission, when they throng the lobby, begging and soliciting, complete with the legless mendicant on a skate board.

CHASE ON FILM

An arch of lights comes on with each song, as Brecht planned, but lighting designer Jim Dickson has used yellow lights to eliminate the needlessly unpleasant blinding effect of white ones. Keith Snider's sets, sketched around flexible pipe frames which envelop the jail scenes, are fast changing and evocative.

Lindeman has climaxed his production with a seven-minute chase scene on film, shot around Sausalito's old distrillery, which is a comedy masterpiece in itself. He combines highly accelerated film speed with actual characters breaking out of the screen in the Czechoslovakian-developed "cinefusion" technique to create a truly memorable theatrical happening.

My only criticism of the overall production would be a lack of true ensemble playing which allows the pace to drop at times, but this is patently unfair, for Lindeman put this on with seven weeks of night time rehearsal, while the Berliner Ensemble devotes many months to a production.

Still, there are moments when 29 people on stage actually pull together as a unit, and when these moments come, they are superb.

NO GLAMOR

Bruce Bishop's MacHeath — short, rotund, bald and bearded — goes completely away from the tendency to make the cutthroat a glamor character. He is vulgar, dishonorable, rotten to the core, and Bishop plays him that way. He lacks drive at times, but the overall effect is good, and Bishop does well by his songs, notably "The Bulging Pocket Makes The Easy Life."

V. Phipps — Wilson is magnificiently large and blatant as Mrs. Peachum, and Eugene Stillman is generally good as Mr. Peachum, although he tends toward burlesque at times.

Jenny Diver, the tart who turns Judas, is played by Helen Snyder with complete sincerity. All of her songs are excellently done, topped by "The Black Freighter," in which she displays remarkable voice shadings. A fine Lucy Brown comes from Carrie Rose, whose duet in the jail with Polly Peachum is a gem.

Polly is portrayed by Catherine Coulson, a head taller than MacHeath, handsome and well-controlled in her songs. Deserving mention for their work are Mark Jacobs as Filch, Jack Nance as Ready Money Matt, Al Strobel as Crookfinger Jake and P. B. Rayher as Tiger Brown, the police commissioners, played as a total weakling with a strong homosexual attraction to MacHeath.

GOOD COSTUMES

Doyle Richmon's costumes are very good, but Richmon as the Streetsinger could use a lot more energy.

However, as good as all the performers are, the fine quality of this exciting production must be credited mostly to Lindeman's direction. He has resisted the temptation to link today's world with Queen Elizabeth's, except in two instances, which makes them all the more effective. As Brecht's bitter Army Song is being sung, a shot of LBJ captioned "Why is this man smiling?" flashes on the screen. And during Peachum's threat of the poor uprising, the screen shows racial battle photos. "Threepenny Opera" plays Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at 747 Beach Street.

Reds Put Tanks Into Mongolia

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet tank and antiaircraft missile units have been stationed in Mongolia under a defense agreement intended to provide protection against Red China, informed sources said today.

The Red army combat units went into Mongolia last year as part of a general Soviet military buildup along the northern border of Communist China. China has asserted claims to adjacent parts of Soviet Siberia and to Mongolia, a Soviet satellite between Siberia and China.

Judge Hails Plan To End Patronage

BERKELEY (UPI) — Chief Justice Roger J. Traynor of the California Supreme Court today gave his unqualified support to a plan which would take the appointment of judges out of politics.

Under the proposal, which will be presented to the legislature this month, judicial appointments would be made by a six-member commission including two judicial members, two citizens appointed by the governor and two lawyer members appointed by the State Bar.

Traynor spported the plan in a speech at the dedication of the new Earl Warren Legal Center at the University of California. He shared the rostrum with chief justice Warren.

"The prospect of a judicial selection system based on competence and not upon political consideration has been long in the making and should gladden all of us, whether lawyers or not, who believe there should be no place for politics in the selection of judges," Traynor said.

Man has been making glass for at least 5,000 years.

Civic Sessions Will Double Up In Tiburon Hall

Two meetings are scheduled for Tiburon City Hall at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

The planning commission will hold a study session on the downtown plan and amendments to the zoning ordinance, in the council chamber downstairs.

Upstairs, Councilmen Thomas E. Drohan and William R. Brember will meet with director Donald O. Stutsman of the Marin County Housing Authority and at least one member each from the city's parks and recreation commission and planning commission, to discuss future uses of the Hilarita Housing Site.

Tthe housing authority will be required by state law to discontinue use of the wartime structures on Tiburon Boulevard by 1972, Stutsman said today.

Creek Dredging Request On Agenda For Larkspur

Request by Schultz Investment Co. for permission to dredge a 50-foot wide strip on city land near Corte Madera Creek in the Marina area is scheduled to be considered by the Larkspur City Council at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Also scheduled is consideration of a request by landowners for permission to form a special assessment district for drainage and street improvements.

Introduction of a public improvements ordinance whereby the city would not issue a permit for building improvements in excess of $2,000 unless property owners make provision for public improvements such as curb, gutter and sidewalks will also be considered.

Chanukah Reading

A special Chanukah program is scheduled for 4 p.m. tomorrow at the Ross Valley Branch of the Marin County Library. It will include a story told by Mrs. Joseph Rotenberg and a hora led by Marc Israel.

128 MILLION PASSENGERS

U.S. Airports Face Traffic Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Our skies are getting more crowded every day.

Each day more people board more airliners, more are taking flying lessons, more airplanes are winging from factories.

FOR 1967, passenger traffic on commercial airliners totaled 128 million. Ten years from now, the Federal Aviation Agency estimates, there will be 352 million passengers — nearly three times the present number. A Senate committee heard testimony that the figure may even be 450 million.

The growth in non-airline, non-military flying will be just as spectacular. In 1965, manufacturers of civil aircraft produced 12,646 planes. The figure in 1966 was 16,404 — valued at more than $2 billion.

A forecast of 104,000 non-airline, non-military planes in 1967 is sure to be exceeded. By 1977, that total is expected to be 180,000 and will include 8,000 turbine aircraft, compared with 950 this year.

In the next three years the first jumbos — airliners that carry nearly 500 passengers — will take to the skies. Despite the increased seating space on the jumbos, the forecast is that airliners will increase from this year's 2,337 to 2,875 in 1972 and 3,500 in 1977.

All this has caused mounting concern for ground facilities to handle them, safety facilities to guide them, airports to land them.

The FAA has ordered a sweeping revision of air safety rules — including easier access to exits, better evacuation procedures, and improved marking and lighting of exits — aimed at saving more lives in airline crashes. The new rules are expected to cost the airlines and manufacturers almost $2 billion in the next few years, but passengers are expected to pay most of the cost.

Airport development costs are expected to run $6 billion in the next 10 years. President Johnson has called for a broad new program to cope with the rising air traffic. He has suggested a plan that would spend an estimated $5 billion for new facilities, equipment and additional personnel and said he would ask the airlines, passengers and communities to share the cost of the program.

Even without any increase, flying is at a crisis point. There is mounting clamor to bar private planes from busy commercial airports where they have the same privileges as the big airline jets. But airports are paid for by all citizens and the air is free and some sort of compromise must be reached.

O'Hare Airport in Chicago, the nation's busiest, had 478,644 takeoffs and landings last year by airliners — an average of 64 each hour. And it had 78,124 general aviation craft landing and taking off — an average of 9 each hour.

John F. Kennedy International in New York had 390,898 takeoffs and landings last year, an average of 45 an hour.

In all, 17 airports had more than 100,000 airline takeoffs and landings last year. They were in order, O'Hare, Kennedy, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta, Washington National, Dallas Love Field, Miami, Newark, LaGuardia (N.Y.), Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit Wayne, Cleveland-Hopkins, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Denver.

Others in the top 25 are Kansas City Municipal, Honolulu, Houston, Minneapolis-St. Paul, New Orleans, Covington (Cincinnati), Baltimore International and San Juan (Puerto Rico) International.

The busiest airport in the country in total operations, behind Chicago's O'Hare, is Opa Locka, Fla. The airport, near Miami, handled 546,985 general aviation aircraft last year, an average of 62 an hour. It had virtually no airline traffic, however.

ON THE BALLOT

Wallace Knows Where To Talk

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — They say most anything will grow somewhere in California.

But nobody was sure two months ago former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama could muster enough support to win a berth on the ballot of the nation's most populous state as a third party presidential candidate.

He did, handily.

Today was the deadline for Dixie's "little giant" to have at least 66,059 Californians registered in his American Independent Party—1 per cent of the vote cast in the last general election.

Secretary of State Frank Jordan reported Wallace's AIP had signed up nearly 88,000 Californians by last Friday and there was "more to come." The official figure won't be known until later this month.

Wallace, quickly recognizing his most fertile opportunity in Southern California, hustled through Los Angeles County's suburbs preaching his own style of strident southern conservatism.

The county, where 7 million people live, gave Wallace more than 40,000 AIP registrants.

The "first man of Alabama," husband of Gov. Lurleen Wallace, made more than 100 speeches in two months in California, advancing a platform of militant antifederalism, a denunciation of intellecutals in government and a call for "law and order."

Time and again, Wallace, a former cab driver, told his audiences the nation would be better off if it listened to the "average gouy . . . the steelworkers and cab drivers, the working people of America . . ."

"The average man doesn't need pseudo-intellectual theories telling him when to get up in the morning and when to go to bed," Wallace told 5,500 persons in Long Beach—his biggest appearance.

The Wallace campaign in California and nationally has borrowed heavily from Alabama state government. Eleven Alabama state officials, seven of them cabinet rank—including state Finance Director Seymour Trammell—worked in California or are working at AIP's national headquarters in Montgomery.

In addition, 17 Alabama state troopers acted as the former governor's bodyguards throughout his California tour. Wallace said he needed that much protection because he gets threats from "anarchists."

Wallace's name will appear on the June 4 California primary election ballot—but that will be a free ride. There will be no rival AIP presidential contenders and Democrats and Republicans can't vote an AIP ballot.

The next test of the Wallace strength comes in November's general election, a three-way event between Republicans, Democrats and the AIP.

Wallace maintains, however, that he will bow out of the race if either of the two national parties produce a platform and nominate a presidential candidate endorsing the Wallace conservatism.

But few political observers in Alabama and California expect that to happen. Wallace himself makes it sound unlikely.

"Today the leadership of both parties is the same," he told the California crowds. "You could put them all in an Alabama cotton picker's sack, shake them up and dump them out; take the first one to slide out and put him right back into power and there would be no change."

Californian Dies In Auto Collision

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A 20-year-old California housewife was killed and three persons were injured yesterday in a spectacular two-car accident on an elevated section of the state thruway in Buffalo.

The dead woman was identified as Lola Palmer of Sacramento. Her husband, Emile, 22, escaped serious injury.

Brass Member Still Critical

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) —A member of the Tijuana Brass musical group, injured in a Dec. 3 auto accident near here, has regained consciousness at St. Mary's Hospital.

Authorities said Ralph Edgel, 28, Studio City, Calif., remained in critical condition yesterday but had regained consciousness. He had been in a coma since being hospitalized.

He was injured when a car, driven by his wife, Muriel Sue, collided head-on with one driven by Mildred Burns, 62, Tucson.

Mrs. Edgel was killed in the accident. Mrs. Burns remained in critical condition.

Beginning salaries of college graduates have increased nearly 30 per cent since 1960, according to the Southern Illinois University Placement Service.

Poll For State Bares Feelings On Education

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

A big majority of Californians consider education the most important government service, according to a survey conducted for the State Committee on Public Education, results of which were announced yesterday in Sacramento.

Of 1,001 persons interviewed in the survey, 60 per cent said they feel "strongly" and another 23 per cent said they feel "moderately" that schools are a more important service than fire or police protection or national defense.

However, only 11 per cent of the 1,001 feel that public opinion is influential in determining education policy. And 70 per cent of them are content to leave the running of the schools to professional educators.

$25,000 PROJECT

The survey was conducted by Field Research Associates, headed by Mervin D. Field of Belvedere, and was financed by $25,000 in federal funds. A member of the Field organization said the 1,001 interviews were conducted statewide.

The survey organization divided the respondents into three almost-equal classes: 32 per cent critics, 32 per cent supporters, and 36 per cent "in between." The division came on how the people feel about the job the schools are doing in teaching the "three Rs," the critics holding that the state's public schools are falling down on these essential subjects.

Critics agreed with supporters that the schools generally do well in teaching mathematics and social science, according to an analysis of the report by the California Department of Education.

COOL TO ELECTIONS

Despite their feeling of the importance of education — but perhaps because of their belief that school policies are not influenced by public opinion — those interviewed had taken less interest in school elections than in state elections. Only 51 per cent of them had voted in school elections during the year, although 71 per cent had voted in the last state election.

All three classes — critics, supporters, and "in-betweens" — were in general agreement that the schools need to improve in these areas: special help for pupils with emotional problems, teaching about drugs and tobacco, encouraging students to think for themselves, teaching tolerance, instructing in morality, developing personal ambition, and instilling appreciation of the American way of life.

MINORITY CRITICS

Minority races contain the greatest percentage of critics of the schools, the report indicated. About one out of 10 of those interviewed were from non-Caucasian races: 63 Negroes and 36 per cent other races. Of the Negroes, 49 per cent were classed as critics; of the other races, 39 per cent, and of Caucasians, 31 per cent.

For the whole group of 1,001, however, critical sttitude toward the schools' teaching of basic subjects increased with the person's own increase in education — except for a decrease in criticism among those with degrees beyond the baccalaureate. Of those with less than an eighth grade education, only 25 per cent were classed as critics; of high school graduates, 29 per cent, and of college graduates, 40 per cent — of holders of advanced degrees, only 34 per cent.

Those with children in school below the fifth grade were more likely to be classed as critics than those with older children in school.

P-TA LOW-RATED

Parent-Teacher Associations as vehicles for informing the public about the schools were not highly regarded by the majority of those interviewed. Only 35 per cent believed the P-TA helpful in obtaining news about the schools, though 71 per cent thought the P-TA was useful to school authorities. Eighty-eight per cent felt direct contact with pupils and parents was the best way to obtain information about the schools. Newspapers ranked as the next best.

School baord meetings and citizen committees were not viewed as effective channels of communication.

MONEY PROPOSAL

The research firm listed as "most well received" proposal: "Make sure that schools in the poorest districts have the same amount of money per pupil . . . as schools in the richest districts." This received an "intensity rating" of 3.62 on a a scale on which 4 would be the maximum.

Closely following it, at 3.32 each, were: "Let each student progress as rapidly as he can in each subject," and "spend additional money for special teachers and smaller classes for minority group children."

RELOCATION ISSUE

Next came: "Arrange education programs so that pupils who move to a new area can pick up where they left off in the old school" (3.25) and spend additional money on research and experimentation for better schools in the future (3.23).

There was not, however, too big a gap between these and "change laws so that local schools have more freedom from state control," which the surveyors listed as receiving "little public favor" with a rating of 2.46.

Fifty-three per cent felt parent interest the most important reason why some children get more from school than others.

One question asked: "What is the best source for school tax dollars?" Forty-one per cent said state funds; 19 per cent, federal, and 17 per cent, local. All three are already sources of funds for all school districts.

O. J. ALL THE WAY—Southern Cal's great back O. J. Simpson goes over the top of a pileup in the first period to score the Trojans' first touchdown against Indiana in the Rose Bowl yesterday. (UPI Telephoto)

Simpson Achieves Rose Bowl Dream

PASADENA (AP) — Southern California's O. J. Simpson achieved his dream of playing in the Rose Bowl and turned it into a nightmare for the Hoosiers of Indiana.

The All-America halfback scored both touchdowns as the Trojans captured the 54th annual classic 14-2 yesterday and cemented their hold on the national collegiate football championship.

Simpson gained 128 yards net in 25 carries as the speedy workhorse of the Trojan attack.

LAUDS SIMPSON

"Southern California, with Simpson, is the national champion," declared Coach John Pont of Indiana. "You could give Simpson to some of the other teams we played and then they'd be the best."

O. J. turns his athletic talents to the running track on Friday night in an indoor (Cow Palace) meet in his San Francisco hometown but declared he plans to return to football and won't try for the U.S. Olympic team.

"He'll get better," was the pronouncement from USC Coach John McKay, who termed himself well pleased with his club's performance against the Big Ten representatives.

Southern California scored on their first series of plays, driving 84 yards in 13 plays as Simpson gained 38 in six carries, including the final two.

COSTLY FUMBLE

A fumble cost USC another first-half touchdown as Dan Scott lost the ball in the end zone. In the third period, Simpson gained 28 yards in four carries on a 45-yard touchdown advance. He burst the final eight as Ron Yary and Dennis Borne opened the hole for him.

Indiana's only points came on a 27 yard second-quarter field goal by Dave Kornowa.

McKay revealed the strategy for keeping Indiana from keying too much on Simpson, the 200-pound junior who runs the 100-yard dash in 9.4 seconds.

"We started passing on first down to get the linebackers out of there and gave the ball to Scott more than usual," the coach said. Scott contributed 85 yards in 18 carries as Simpson would swing wide as a decoy.

TOP EFFORT

The Trojan coach also termed the defensive effort one of the best for this season as the winners contained quarterback Harry Gonso and halfback John Eisenbarger much of the afternoon.

Pont added, "We feel bad that we missed a couple of scoring opportunities and spent most of the rest of the game in bad field position. You just don't drive 75 or 80 yards for a touchdown against a team like Southern Cal."

Indiana had its forward wall stunting, but Simpson declared, "Our linemen picked those stunts right up."

MEN OUT

McKay explained a frequency of penalties and apparent mistakes when he pointed out the club was minus five regulars including the two starting guards —one out on a knee injury and the other ineligible.

"I thought our team played real well and I was tickled with the 14-3 score," the coach asserted. "But I knew as I walked off the field that most people wouldn't be."

Simpson also was tickled. He said before the 1967 season started that his dream was to play in the Rose Bowl. On this New Year's Day, his family was among the 102,946 who watched him win honors as the game's outstanding performer.

JIM GILMARTIN

It Was Quite A Show In Oakland Coliseum

SUPER RAIDERS — At approximately 4 p.m. on the final day of 1967 my War Department turned to me and said, "Pray tell, oh great white father, why have you dragged me to Kezar all these years when we could have been coming here to watch them?"

"Here" happened to be Oakland's beautiful Coliseum and "them" happened to be the existing and poised Oakland Raiders. We were among the 53,330 roaring fans who were watching the Raiders dismantle the Houston Oilers for the American Football League championship.

Indeed, it was a good question by Madame Department for the Raiders have scaled pro football's Mt. Everest in seven short years while Kezar 49ers are still staggering around the foothills.

I'll Be Spending More Time There

I have a hunch most of my Sundays next autumn will be spent crossing the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge rather than the Golden Gate. And I have a hunch many, many more 49er fans will be joining me.

To recapture their deserting fans the 49ers must come up with something dramatic before next season — like trading John Brodie, signing George Mira, drafting some big name collegians and signing a top-flight coach to replace the dismissed Jack Christiansen. Top candidate Bill Peterson of Florida State does not move me. I'm thinking more like Phil Bengtson, chief architect of Green Bay's mighty defense for several years.

They'll Give Packers Tussle

Meanwhile, back to Oakland. Those Raiders were mighty impressive and there are legions of folks who think they'll give the Packers a tussle in the Super Duper Bowl Jan. 14.

The Raider offense may have trouble against Green Bay. Hewritt Dixon and Pete Banaszak won't run around the Pack line like they did against Houston. And Daryle Lamonica won't have as much time to pass. But that Oakland defensive unit can play in any league and Green Bay can be had. The Packers lost four games this season and struggled to a last-minute victory Sunday over Dallas, a team that, incidentally, was beaten by the 49ers.

Sunday's show in Oakland was spectacular. Such color! The beautiful stadium decked out in championship red, white and blue banners, the field groomed to perfection and brightened by AFL insignia, Arizona State's great 200-plus member marching band playing "I Left My Heart In San Francisco" for 49er fans present, the holiday mood of the crowd, Jim "Gomer Pyle" Nabors' beautiful rendition of our national anthem.

Transistors All Around

It seemed every one in the happy-go-lucky, vociferant crowd had a transistor listening to the breath-taking final minute in Green Bay. The news media were luckier; they had a television set in the stadium's press lounge.

The only annoying part of the day was Tiburon resident Johnny Holliday's public address announcing. I was sitting near a loud speaker and young Johnny nearly blasted me out of the stadium. He sounded like he swallowed the mike because his S's made me think Porky Pig was doing the announcing. Besides, his spotter could be heard giving him the information. The Oakland P. A. team could take a lesson from the Kezar team, featuring Larkspur resident Dave Scofield, an

Peterson Considers 49er Job

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Bill Peterson, the football coach credited with helping Florida State University grid fans forget FSU was a girl's school less than 20 years ago, said yesterday he will fly to California to talk about coaching the San Francisco 49ers.

Peterson said that he would make the trip tomorrow "to sit down and talk about a job" with the National Football League team.

According to published reports, Peterson has been offered a five-year contract as head coach at $50,000 a year. His earnings as chief Seminole coach have been estimated at $40,000 annually.

Peterson confirmed reports that he had been contacted twice in three weeks by the 49ers, but said he could not say when a decision would come.

"It's going to take some searching of the soul," he said. "And being happy now, I certainly want to talk to my people here."

He said of tomorrow's meeting with 49ers officials, "It'll just be talk. There are a lot of things they want to ask me and there's a lot of things I want to ask them."

Peterson said his first contact with the 49ers came before the team fired Jack Christiansen from the post. He said he had turned down one other pro team's offer in recent years, but declined to identify the team.

Peterson joined FSU after leaving Louisiana State University in 1959. He led this year's Seminole squad to a 7-2-2 season and a 17-17 tie against powerful Penn State in the Gator Bowl.

Rauch Talks Of Raider Confidence

OAKLAND (AP) — "This team has come a long way with confidence," says Oakland Raider Coach John Rauch about the way his team demolished the Houston Oilers, 40-7, to become the American Football League's 1967 champs.

The Oilers put the rout together with a 40-year-old toe, a powerful running attack and a bit of acting by their quarterback.

The toe belonged to George Blanda, a former Oiler, who booted four field goals and four conversions—both AFL championship game records — to account for 16 Raider points.

144 YARDS

The running attack was paced by powerful Hewritt Dixon, who amassed 144 yards in 21 carries. His best effort was a 69-yard scoring run in the opening moments of the second quarter.

Pete Banaszak added 116 yards in 15 carries for Oakland.

But what broke the game open for the Raiders was a fake field goal attempt in the waning moments of the first half.

Oakland, leading 10-0, called time out and what seemed to be an argument between Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica and Rauch ensued.

When Lamonica returned to the field, a three-point play appeared to be set—against Lamonica's wishes. But with the snap of the ball, the quarterback rolled to his right and lofted an 18-yard touchdown to Dave Kocurek.

ICING

"That was the icing on the cake," said Rauch, who explained the play was part of the game plan. "Probably the best decision I made all day was to wait and use it when we did."

Houston's comeback chances dwindled even further as the second half opened when Oakland recovered the kickoff, fumbled by Oiler Zeke Moore. Three plays later Lamonica's touchdown made it 24-0.

Oakland scored once more before Houston finally got on the scoreboard.

"They stopped our running and that was the key," said Oiler Coach Wally Lemm.

Hoyle Granger, Houston's top runner and the league's second best with 1,194 yards during the regular season, was able to carry for only 19 yards in 14 attempts.

For Houston the dream of rags to riches ended with the resounding defeat. The Oilers had ended the 1966 season with a dismal 3-11 record, last in the East.

This season the Oilers kept pace with the division-leading New York Jets, caught them in the final weeks and won the title with a 9-4-1 record.

For the Raiders, there will be one more tomorrow — the Jan. 14 Superbowl clash with the National Football League champions, the Green Bay Packers.

Meredith Reported Quitting

DALLAS (AP) — Don Meredith, quarterback of the Eastern Division champion Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, is retiring, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The Times Herald, in a copyrighted story, said Meredith told a few teammates and friends of his retirement plans on the airplane home from Green Bay Sunday night after the Cowboys lost 21-17 in the NFL title contest.

EARLY DECISION

Times Herald sports writer Steve Perkins said Meredith decided in the middle of the season—his eighth as a pro—to make the 1967 season his last.

Meredith will go to work for a Dallas stock brokerage firm, the report said.

"The stock market grabs me," he was quoted as saying. "It's a new ball game every day."

"Dandy Don" also played his college football in Dallas, guiding Southern Methodist. He often was injured during the 1967 season, and this year was his third of a three-year contract.

The story said the Cowboys, of course, will try to sign Meredith to a new contract.

JUST ONCE

Fullback Don Perkins announced last spring he would retire, then came back into the fold. At the time, the report said, Meredith said: "When I call it quits, I'm just going to say it once, and that's it."

Meredith makes about $40,000 a year with the Cowboys.

His retirement would boost Craig Morton into the top job for the Cowboys, who lost two seasons running to Green Bay for the league championship.

SOONER BOOMER — Oklahoma tailback Steve Owens (36) booms for a hardfought first down after a 12-yard gain against Tennessee in the Orange Bowl. Putting on the stop are Volunteers Albert Dorsey (right) and Jim McDonald. (AP Wirephoto)

ORANGE BOWL DRAMATICS

Sooners Win A Thriller

MIAMI (AP) — Oklahoma's quick-striking Sooners, a team built out of adversity, could claim the nation's No. 2 college football ranking today after a wild and dramatic 26-24 victory over Tennessee in the Orange Bowl.

But 34-year-old Coach Chuck Fairbanks, who took the helm at Oklahoma when Jim Mackenzie died suddenly during spring practice, was claiming nothing except heavenly protection.

'The good Lord was looking after us," said Fairbanks yesterday, dripping wet after being dunked into a shower in the tumultuous dressing room of the Sooners.

19-0 LEAD

Quarterback Bob Warmack stunned second-ranked Tennessee with a brilliant running and passing performance that moved No. 3 Oklahoma into a 19-0 halftime lead.

But the Big Eight champions had to hang on grimly against the resurging Volunteers in the second half. They got to Warmack for two interceptions that narrowed the margin to 19-14 in just two minutes, 10 seconds of the third period.

And it was not until Tennessee's soccer-style field goal kicker, Karl Kremser, narrowly missed from 43 yards was the issue settled with 14 seconds left on the clock.

BIG FIRST HALF

Running and passing for 188 yards in the first half, Warmack scored one touchdown on a seven yard run, threw 20 yards to Eddie Hinton for another, and led a 74-yard drive ending with a one-yard scoring lunge by Steve Owens.

"That first half was my greatest of the season," Warmack said, "but that second half had to be the poorest."

Tennessee's roving monster man, Jimmy Glover, picked off a flat pass from Warmack and raced 36 yards to score. Two minutes later, Jim Weatherford snatched another Warmack heave and returned it from the 31 to the Oklahoma 17. Tailback Charley Fulton scored from the five and it was a new ball game.

FIELD GOAL

A 26-yard field goal by Kremser, son of a refugee from Communist Germany, narrowed that margin to two points, 19-17.

Then Oklahoma's Bob Stephenson intercepted a pass by quarterback Dewey Warren of Tennessee and raced 25 yards for the decisive touchdown. Warren scored from the three with 4:05 left.

A fourth-down gamble ordered by Fairbanks in Oklahoma territory with only inches to go failed and Tennessee moved down to the Sooner 21, where Kremser made his desperate try as a record crowd of 77,993 roared its excitement to the bitter end.

WRONG THING

"I almost blew it," Fairbanks said. "I thought it was the right thing to do. It wasn't."

"Football is a game of emotions, with ups and downs," said Tennessee's disappointed coach, Doug Dickey. "In the first half, we just weren't ready to play and they simply out-executed us."

"But I'm proud of the way my boys came back. It was a helluva ball game with a great Oklahoma team comparable to the best of the Southeastern Conference."

Sweet Triumph For LSU

Sugar Bowl Win Over Wyoming

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mowing down undefeated teams in bowl games is nothing new for Louisiana State's football team and its burly head coach, Charlie McClendon.

But no one expected an unheralded substitute halfback named Smith to be the star this time.

The Tigers' 20-13 comeback victory over unbeaten, untied Wyoming in yesterday's Sugar Bowl made it the third time in six years that LSU has snapped winning streaks of their opponents in postseason classics.

PRIME CANDIDATE

LSU's triumph may have established McClendon as the prime candidate for the athletic director's post at his school. The LSU board of supervisors is slated to name a new athletic director early this year.

Hero of the Tiger victory on the soggy Sugar Bowl turf was sophomore second-string halfback Glenn Smith, who came off the bench late in the third period to breathe new life into LSU's faltering offense.

"Anybody could have done it," said Smith, who ran for 74 yards and caught a key pass for 39 yards. "I was just lucky it happened to be me." The 185-pound, 5-foot-11, New Orleans native was voted the game's outstanding player.

TEAM DEPTH

Wyoming Coach Lloyd Eaton, trying for his first victory in a major bowl game, agreed that Smith was the key man — but he attributed LSU's victory to team depth more than anything else.

"They could substitute freely at each position," he said. "We tired in the fourth quarter."

Wyoming built up a 13-0 halftime margin behind a rugged defense, the passing of quarterback Paul Toscano and the place kicking of Jerry DePoyster. LSU made only one first-half first down.

But then LSU again turned into its role of spoiler — just as it had snapped a 22-game winning streak by Arkansas in the 1966 Cotton Bowl and topped unbeaten Texas in the 1963 Cotton Bowl.

OFF TACKLE

Smith's slashing off-tackle runs and the second-half passing of Nelson Stokley, LSU's often-injured quarterback, sent Wyoming's 14-game winning streak down the drain.

Smith scored once on a one-yard plunge and Stokley fired touchdown passes of eight and 14 yards to end Tommy Morel — the last, coming with 4:22 left in the game, broke a 13-13 tie.

The proud Cowboys almost pulled it out in the last minute. A 54-yard Toscano to George Anderson pass set up Wyoming in scoring position but LSU dropped flanker Gene Huey on the five as he grabbed a Toscano pass at the end of the game.

"We never lost our poise," McClendon said. "Our people came up with the clutch plays to beat a great team, and it wasn't an accident."

Besides lack of bench strength, Eaton also blamed second-half mistakes for the loss. LSU intercepted four passes and recovered a fumble. One of the pass interceptions — by linebacker Benny Griffein — set up the winning touchdown.

FINE PLAYERS

"Wyoming has fine football players," McClendon said. "The LSU coaches knew this, but the fans may not have realized it. Now they do."

Standing out for the Cowboys were Toscano, who completed 14 of 23 passes for 239 yards; halfback Jim Kiick, who scored the only Cowboy touchdown on a one-yard run and led rushers with 75 yards in 19 carries, and All-American DePoyster.

DePoyster booted field goals from 24 and 49 yards and set a Sugar Bowl record with his punting, averaging 49 yards on four kicks.

Jim Clark Has Quick Race Lead

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Jim Clark of Scotland has a leg up on the 1968 world driving championship and cherished record in his pocket.

Clark, driving a powerful Lotus Ford, won the South African Grand Prix Monday, first champ-Grand Prix yesterday, first championship race of the 1968 Formula One series. And it was his 25th career victory in a Grand Prix, breaking his tie with Juan Manuel Fangio, the retired Argentine great, and putting him alone as the biggest winner of all time.

Clark took the lead in the second of the 80 laps around the Kyalami circuit and held it the rest of the way. He finished the 204 miles in one hour, 53 minutes, 56 seconds for an average speed of 107.42 miles per hour.

Graham Hill, Clark's British teammate on the Lotus Ford team, was second. He was followed in order by Joachen Rindt of Australia in a Repco Brabham, Chris Amon of New Zealand in a Ferrari, Dennis Hulme of New Zealand in a McLaren BRM and Jean-Pierre Beltoise of France in a Matra-Cosworth.

Only 10 of the starting field of 23 cars finished the race in the broiling, 93-degree temperature. A crowd of about 80,000 was on hand.

Dan Gurney, Costa Mesa, Calif., the only American in the race, was forced to quit after 58 laps because of an oil leak in his Eagle-Gurney-Weslake.

Can't Have Everything, Lady

One other note: A woman near me said to her hubby after Dixon's 69-yard TD run: "I wish I was watching this on TV so we could see that again on the instant replay."

Well, you can't have everything, lady.

Anyway, it's on to the Super Bowl. And don't bet too much on the Packers. I'm not saying the Raiders'll beat 'em, but it will be a tussle.

Record Crowds See Football Bowl Games

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Record crowds turned out at the Rose Bowl and Orange Bowl as four New Year's college football classics drew a total of 335,326 fans.

A Rose Bowl turnout of 102,946 — largest in the Pasadena game's 54-year history — watched national champion Southern California defeat Indiana 14-3 yesterday afternoon.

Oklahoma edged Tennessee 26-24 under the lights in the Orange Bowl at Miami before 77,913 — biggest crowd ever to see a football game in Florida.

The Sugar Bowl in New Orleans drew a crowd of 78,963 for Louisiana State's 20-13 victory over Wyoming, while 75,504 packed the Cotton Bowl in Dallas for Texas A&M's 20-16 triumph over Alabama.

AIRBORNE AGGIE—Texas A&M's Larry Stegent (25) sails over left guard for first down in third quarter against Alabama in the Cotton Bowl. Aggies upset the Crimson Tide, 20-16.

COTTON BOWL UPSET

Texans Win On Big Plays

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — "The big plays won for us again," said Coach Gene Stallings of Texas A&M as he reviewed his team's 20-16 triumph over Alabama in the Cotton Bowl yesterday.

Yes, big plays and Alabama mistakes—the kind of mistakes that led Paul "Bear" Bryant, coach of Alabama, to contend long ago that the defense can outscore the offense.

Trouble was that the pupil was beating the teacher with his own philosophy—Alabama was making the mistakes and the Aggie defense was cashing in on them.

PROUD

Bryant, who coached Stallings at Texas A&M, then took the young man with him to Alabama as his assistant, lamented over his team's mistakes, but not too long.

Rather, he spent his time telling Stallings how proud he was that he could bring Texas A&M out of a four-game losing streak to the Southwest Conference championship, then victory in the Cotton Bowl to run his winning string to seven.

Bryant came across the field and carried Stallings around like a football team often does a winning coach. Stallings couldn't help himself—the Bear outweights him by about 75 pounds.

"He sure is strong isn't he?" mused Stallings when Bryant finally let him down.

TURNOVERS

Alabama lost two fumbles, had three passes intercepted and got short kicking to set up Aggie scores.

The Aggies, on the other hand were outgained both on the ground and in the air but offset that by using the breaks.

It was a familiar pattern—the Aggies played like that in the glittering stretch drive that became the greatest comeback in Southwest Conference history.

Noting that the Aggies had intercepted 27 passes and recovered a dozen fumbles, Bryant said before the Cotton Bowl game that the main thing he feared was the A&M defense. His trepidation was justified.

There were many angles to the "family squabble" that broke out on the Cotton Bowl's soggy turf—it was called that because of the striking resemblance of the two teams, the almost father-son relationship of the two coaches and the fact that Stallings had recruited some players for Bryant at Alabama.

BROUGHT HALLMAN

But Stallings, when he came to Texas A&M as head coach, brought Curley Hallman of Northport, Ala., which is near Tuscaloosa, the home of the University of Alabama.

Hallmen intercepted two Alabama passes, one of them stopping the last effort of the Crimson Tide. The other set the Aggies up for a score but they couldn't take advantage of it.

Aggie quarterback Edd Hargett, named outstanding back of the game, passed for two touchdowns and his third down throw for 10 yards kept the third Aggie drive moving. However, the big man of this surge was Wendell Housley, who carried for 33 yards in two runs to get the winning touchdown.

Ken Stabler, the southpaw passing star of Alabama, didn't throw for any touchdowns but he kept the Aggies in a stew throughout with his dangerous flinging of the pigskin.

RAN FOR TWO

He ran for both Alabama touchdowns. But he had three passes intercepted and that contributed mightily to the Aggie cause.

Alabama scored first, driving 80 yards with Stabler making the last three.

A&M tied it up late in the first period after Tommy Maxwell intercepted a Stabler pass. Harge pitched to Larry Stegent for 13 yards and the score.

Alabama took the lead opening the second period when Steve David kicked a 36-yard field goal.

The Aggies, however, went ahead 13-1; with only 21 seconds left in the half as Hargett passed seven yards to Maxwell.

A&M clinched the victory midway of the third period with a two-yard drive set up a short Davis kick. It was Housley who crashed the Alabama line like a truck to get the touchdown that gave the Aggies a victory.

Alabama came back to drive 83 yards for a touchdown, made on Stabler's seven-yard run.

Jubilation, Tears, Prayer Follow Packers' Victory

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—The Green Bay Packers, hardened pros, usually observe victory with quiet smiles, a few jokes and little fanfare.

But Sunday's 21-17 victory over Dallas hardly was ordinary. Achieved with a last minute touchdown in wearying cold, the victory earned them an unprecedented third successive National Football League title and a berth in the Jan. 14 Super Bowl.

What followed was emotional bedlam seldom seen here. Players cheered and pummeled each other. There were a few tears. There was prayer.

Vince Lombardi, the steel-tough coach, darted from player to happy player in the noisy locker room, a huge grin on his face nearly frozen by 13 below zero cold.

PRAISES STARR, KRAMER

Lombardi's warmest congratulations went to quarterback Bart Starr, who scored the winning touchdown on a one-yard sneak with 13 seconds left and guard Jerry Kramer, whose perfect block sprung Starr.

Kramer, a 10-year veteran of five title teams, threw a devastating block into Dallas tackle Jethro Pugh, who had spent most of the afternoon riding herd on Starr.

The climax was strikingly like last year's game, when the Packers won 34-27 after stopping the Cowboys with first down on the Green Bay two yard line in the waning minutes.

This time the Cowboys had to mount a goal line stand. They did, but Starr and Kramer cracked it on third down.

Just like last year, the Packers broke to a 14-0 lead, this time on touchdown passes by Starr to Boyd Dowler.

But two Green Bay fumbles handed the Cowboys 10 points before halftime, and Dallas kept the momentum with a go-ahead touchdown on the first play of the fourth quarter—a 50-yard halfback option pass from Dan Reeves to Lance.

Defense prevailed from that point until the Packers started their winning drive on their own 32 with 4:54 left. Five Starr passes and an eight-yard run by New York and Washington castoff Chuck Mercein put the ball on the Cowboy three.

Donny Anderson gained two yards to the one for a first down, but was held for no gain on the next two plays. Then Starr took it over.

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS

Redwood Has Experience, Size To Be A Contender

By GARY TISCHLER

(Fourth in a series on Marin County Athletic League Basketball prospects.)

Height:

How about 6-5, 6-4?

Shooting:

How about Ken Johnson, Roger Smith, Jim Peters?

Experience?

How about two returning part-time starters, a wave of starters from a highly-successful "B" team, and a couple of other fellows that saw heavy varsity duty late in the season last year?

HAS IT ALL

Redwood High School would appear to have it all.

Coach Dick Hart's Giants are aptly named. They have 6-5 Tom Seidenberg, a vastly improved center named most valuable player at the Yuba City Tournament and the team's leading scorer and rebounder. And to augment the height, there is 6-4 Dave Detrick. Both saw plenty of action last year.

Ken Johnson, a fine all-around athlete who has at various times excelled in football and basketball, is back on the hardcourts after a couple of year's absence and has shown scoring power on occasion.

So has Roger Smith, young sophomore brother of College of Marin's Russ Smith, up from the "B" team, a fine shooter who can break up any ball game. So can shooters like junior Jim Peters, Jerry Pina and Tom Ravani.

EXPERIMENTING

Hart has been experimenting quite a bit, playing anywhere from 7 to 10 cagers in each game. And quite a few times all of them get into the scoring column, which shows up for great depth if not a steady lineup.

The Giants are favored to win the MCAL title according to the Prep Basketball Yearbook.

It is a notion that isn't too farfetched, as some MCAL coaches put the Giants right up there.

So far, Redwood has come up with a spotty 5-6 record of ups and downs. Highlight of the practice season this far has been a runnerup showing at the Yuba City tourney.

Still, with that kind of depth, height and shooting, the Giants, like last year, should be in the running. And not far behind.

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 2, the second day of 1968 with 364 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning star is Venus. The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

Born on Jan. 2, 1727, was British Gen. James Wolfe, the hero of Quebec.

On this day in history:

In 1882, fashion writers reported that a noted Parisian designer said the flair for spring would be "stuffed birds worn on the left shoulder."

In 1905, Soviet forces landed at Port Arthur, Manchuria, surrendered to the Japanese, and ended the last major military engagement in the Russo-Japanese war.

In 1959, Moscow radio announced a rocket had been launched toward the moon.

A thought for the day—Greek Poet Hesiod once said, "For himself doth a man work evil in working evils for another."

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

One Heart Bid From North Shocks A Leading Expert

The farthest the human voice has been known to carry, according to the books, is about 10 and one-half miles, at night, across still water. This record was broken last month in New Orleans at the National Bridge Tournament after I had finished playing a hand at four spades.

SEEKS CAUSE

Someday, if the noise ever dies down, I may find out why Lew Mathe bid one heart with the North hand. It had the effect of keeping East quiet, so that West's opening lead looked like an innocent third-best or fourth-best card.

I led the deuce of spades and tried a deep finesse with dummy's seven, hoping to find K-10-x or Q-10-x of spades in the West hand.

EXPERT'S PLAY

Toronto expert Eric Murray won with the queen of spades and returned a crafty nine of clubs. His fellow Canadian, Sammy Kehela, won with the ace of cluhs and returned a club to the king.

Now a nervous defender in the East seat would return a heart to make sure of defeating the contract, but Murray was after bigger game. He switched to the singleton diamond.

BLISSFUL DECLARER

In my ignorance I felt very good about the way things were going. I stepped up with the ace of diamonds, planning to take another spade finesse, draw trumps and then discard my low diamonds on dummy's good hearts.

I led another low spade and was confirmed in my filly when Kehela craftily played the ten. The roof fell in when I tried a finesse with dummy's jack of spades. Murray won with the king of spades, returned a heart for a ruff and Kehela then cashed the king of diamonds.

Down three. What's a good remedy for a constant ringing in the ears?

♦ K 10 9 8 6
♣ A 6 5 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. Since you have only 7 points, the combined count is only 25 points at most. Be satisfied with a part score unless your partner can raise diamonds to show a maximum count and a good fit.

2-Year-Old Held As A Shoplifter

TOKYO (UPI)—The youngest member of a gang of shoplifters broken up here was, according to police, two years old.

The ringleaders were two sisters of Urawa City who apparently trained their four children in their profession. Besides the two-year-old, the ages of the other children are 12, 9 and 4.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Take Your Losses; Let Profits Run

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. The only time I made money in the stock market was when I bought American Hospital Supply at 43. After reading a number of columns predicting a break in the stock market, I sold out at 57. I'm sorry now, because the shares have since hit 81. Is it too high to buy again? Can you advise me on Bunker-Ramo? — O.T.

A. I'm very sorry that you got out of your Hospital Supply a little too early. I think it is always wise to remember the trading adage: take your losses, but let your profits run. American Hospital Supply is in a powerful growth field and is getting a big assist from Medicare. The stock is no longer cheap, but it has had an uninterrupted growth record for many years and I believe this will continue.

The shares sell for about 50 times this year's estimated earnings. This is a big multiple, but not out of line with other fast-growth issues. I advise you to buy it back and stay with it. It appears to me to be safer than Bunker-Ramo, a relatively small electronics firm controlled by Martin-Marietta.

The company has had an erratic earnings record and has risen sharply on a proposed merger with Amphenol. I advise you to avoid it, unless you really want to speculate.

Q. In December 1957, I bought Tyrex Drug ? Chemical. I have never heard from this company and would appreciate any help you can give me. — A.T.

A. I'm afraid I have bad news for you. I have nothing on this company in my files or manuals. My broker tells me that the last bid he can find for your shares was 5 cents in 1959 and that at present there is no bid and he thinks your stock is worthless. You might write to the company at 42 Newark Street, Hoboken, N.J., and get som information.

APOLLO RADAR ANTENNA

An engineer coordinates a test of an RCA-built rendezvous radar antenna identical to the one that will fly on the Apollo Lunar Module scheduled for a mid-January short orbital test flight. The radar, being built at Morrestown, N.J., is designed to guide vibration by the Saturn launch vehicle and LM rocket engines. It is designed to guide the test ship back to earth.

Irregular Market Shuts High

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market closed irregularly higher today despite weakness in certain groups.

President Johnson's proposed program for building up the international payments position of the United States sent international airlines down.

Gains outnumbered losses by nearly 200 issues on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.44 at 906.55.

President Johnson's proposal to limit U.S. tourism abroad was accompanied by heavy selling in Pan American World Airways which dropped more than a point as most active stock. TWA was down about 4, also in active trading. KLM slipped nearly half a dozen points. Northwest Airlines about 3½.

Gold mining stocks faded in the face of Johnson's determination to improve the U.S. balance of payments and defend the dollar. Dome Mines lost 2 points, Homestake about 1½, Campbell Red Lake nearly a point.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

New Owner Takes Over Golden Valley Market In Mill Valley

There is a new owner for the Golden Valley Market at 64 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley.

Previous owner Savino Cavalier, a resident of San Francisco, is planning on making a trip to Italy and has sold out to Allan Frank of San Carlos. The transaction was handled by Harry Abras of Timmer Realty. Frank has been in the grocery business about 10 years and previously owned the Royal Supermarket in Palo Alto, which he recently sold.

Golden Valley Market will keep its same name, but several other changes will be made — mostly in the inventories. There will be more brands and more items carried. Hours will remain the same. Frank is commuting from San Carlos until he finds a place to live in Marin.

CALIFORNIA COORDINATED HEALTH CARE, an agency offering various types of home nursing and related services, has moved its office from Novato to 926 Irwin Street, San Rafael. It is a branch of the main office in San Francisco.

Services include personal shopping aid for those confined to their homes, nutritional guidance, medical-social workers, physical and speech therapists on a seven-days a week basis and approved for Medi-Cal and Medicare funds.

HAYCO, INC., general contracting firm, has moved its offices from 7084 Redwood Highway, Novato to 61 Industrial Way, San Rafael.

JON C. RITTGER of Mill Valley has been appointed marketing director for Botsford, Constantine and McCarty's international subsidiary in Tokyo, which is being expanded. His assignment takes effect Jan. 15. He was formerly with Campbell-Ewald Co. as a research director and account executive and previously with Human Factors Research, Inc., Los Angeles.

KENNETH V. LARKIN of Greenbrae has been promoted to vice president in charge of marketing at Bank of America. For the past three years he has been statewide head of the bank's Timeplan lending administration in San Francisco. He joined Bank of America in 1945 and managed branches in Bakersfield and Sacramento before moving to the head office in 1962.

Larkin

Prasil

ROBERT W. PRASIL of Novato has been appointed marketing manager in the new Portland region of Pepsi-Cola Co. He has served in various executive capacities for the company during the past 10 years. His new responsibilities will include coordinating sales, advertising, promotion and public relations activities with 34 independent bottling companies in a six-state area.

ROBERT McCREA of Terra Linda has been advanced to manager in charge of the Mr. Levi's product line of Levi Strauss and Co., San Francisco. He joined the company in 1964 as a salesman and became assistant merchandising manager of the casuals department in 1965.

McRae

Coit

FORMER SAN RAFAEL RESIDENT Charles T. Coit has been appointed manager of Pacific Gas and Electric Co. in the St. Helena-Calistoga area, with headquarters at Silverado Service Center, midway between the two communities. He has been customer services supervisor in the Vallejo district for the past three years. He was a graduate of San Rafael High School.

CORRECTION. Raymond Beierle has joined Frank L. Bargalotti Realtor — not Knutte Realty — a typo made in this column last week.

Do You Share Shower? Reply Or Be Jailed

The United States Supreme Court last month ruled that a search warrant is required for electronic "bugging" of private premises. The court thereby struck at a form of invasion of privacy that has been indulged in flagrantly by the federal Department of Justice.

However, no qualms about invasion of privacy seem to be felt by another federal agency: the Census Bureau.

THE DECENNIAL CENSUS was set up in the Constitution as a means of determining the number of representatives in Congress to which each state is entitled. For that purpose, only a head count was necessary (the matter of how the states set up districts for these congressmen or failed to do so being left to the states by the Constitution — although not by the Supreme Court 190 years later).

Naturally, the census offered an opportunity to get some exact information on other things besides just how many people live in each state. Over the years, it was expanded to include a count of livestock of various kinds, information as to movements of people from place to place, etc.

Sometimes people resented being asked such questions. So Congress drew the rules to limit the mandatory questions to a few considered essential; anyone could refuse to answer other queries of the census enumerator if he so wished.

But now the Census Bureau would change all that.

ONE OF THE NUMEROUS White House commissions which President Johnson loves to appoint for every conceivable purpose came up with the idea of a National Data Center, where computers would spew out all sorts of information at the touch of a button. To program the computers, a huge amount of "raw data" would have to be gathered — and what better means of gathering it than the decennial census?

So the Census Bureau agreed to have its enumerators ask a whole flock of new questions — and to require that they be answered. It proposed that refusal to answer be punishable by fine and imprisonment.

Among the question submitted for approval by the House census committee are:

Do you share your shower?

How many babies have you ever had?

What is your mortgage?

There are dozens more.

AT LEAST ONE member of the House census committee is up in arms at the whole idea. Rep. Jerome Waldie, Contra Costa County Democrat, declared:

"I cannot conceive of a more powerful weapon to place in the hands of a government that might seek dictatorial powers over its citizens" than the National Data Center stocked with such information.

Government snooping long ago went far beyond any decent limit. It will take more than the Supreme Court to call a halt. Congress needs to be aroused too.

A good time to arouse congressmen would seem to be now — before the Census Bureau gets approval of its plan to make it a federal crime to refuse to tell whether you share your shower.

COMMITMENT MEANS GIVING OF SELF

Many people complain about the aimlessness and emptiness in their lives. They fail to realize that they lack commitment to anything outside themselves.

John Gardner referred to this need when he said: "Our society not only fails to ask for or expect any depth of commitment from the individual; in a curious way it even discourages such commitment."

The origin of the word "commitment" may help you to add direction and purpose to your own life as well as to assist others to do the same.

It comes from "cum" (with) and "mittere" (to send). "Commitment" means to freely "send", or "pledge" oneself with deep conviction to a person, idea or cause.

In the design of God every person has a vocation to make his own unique contribution to life.

Commit yourself generously to the never-ending task of bringing divine love into a world sorely in need of it. Then you will achieve self-fulfillment and experience the true joy of living.

"By this we know love, that He laid down His life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren."

Goof On School Fund Measure Points Up Committee Danger

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The legislative system of conference reports is sadly in need of revision, according to the California Taxpayers Association.

Officials of the association have announced failure to properly estimate funding of AB 272, the major school finance bill of 1967, may cost the general fund more than $200 million instead of the originally estimated $145 million.

Bills resulting from conference reports are the results of compromise between the Senate and Assembly. When one house passes a bill, and the other house amends the measure, it goes to a conference committee if the house of origin fails to accept the amendments.

THE CONFERENCE committee consists of three members from each house, and these decide upon the final content of the bill.

When this decision is made, the compromise bill goes to each house for approval of the conference report. If either house refuses to accept the conference report, it may be returned to another conference committee, composed of different members than were on the first group, for another try at compromise.

Usually, the conference reports are decided on in secret session, an no record of the deliberations which affect the compromise is available either to other members of the legislature or the public.

IN THE CASE of AB 272, which was authored by Speaker of the House Jesse M. Unruh, the association claims the funds provided for in the measure were "seriously underestimated."

The state Department of Education, said Robert C. Brown, executive vice-president of Cal-Tax, is tabulating individual districts, and it will be February, after the next state budget is presented, before more exact estimates of costs will be known. Further, he says, true costs will not be known until after next June.

"Discovery of the additional error," he said, "points to further need for change in legislative procedures to eliminate last-minute conference reports on major bills.

"There have been sufficient errors made in conference reports that it now becomes apparent to protect legislators and the public, all conference reports should be printed in the journal so all legislators and legislative watchers can review the reports before final action is taken."

Commuter Tax Counter-Proposals

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Mr. Millionaire Alioto proposes a $25 yearly tax on commuters to San Francisco working there, living elsewhere.

How would he or the people of San Francisco like these counter-proposals?

1. Boycott all buying in stores in San Francisco.
2. Keep away from San Francisco for entertainment.
3. Tax all San Franciscans who work in areas outside San Francisco. No one-way ticket for tax purposes.
4. Tax all lawyers that take cases outside San Francisco. Their fees constitute a year's wages. Mr. Alioto's did on his trust cases.
5. Note these are just a few angles. I'm sure other commuters will conjure others — legality of tax, maybe getting a counter-drive up.

Christmas Thief Ruins Holidays

Editor, Independent-Journal:

This past Christmas holiday has left me heartsick and perhaps what is worse, completely disappointed in humanity.

My mother, a widow living on a limited pension, purchased a lovely Christmas wreath to place on the Veteran's Memorial in front of the Court House in San Rafael, in memory of her oldest son who was killed during World War II. She put it there late afternoon Christmas Eve; less than 24 hours later someone had removed it.

I wonder if the satisfaction gained by whoever took it can possibly match the depression and heartache my mother felt at its loss?

Vietnam Policy Never An Issue

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The writer of your editorials of Nov. 28 and Dec. 15 persists in perpetuating the fiction that "the difference over conduct in Vietnam became a major issue of the (1964) campaign," and that "it grew in importance as the campaign progressed."

A sentence from Johnson's final campaign speech, "the issue is peace or war," is quoted with the inference that he was referring to Vietnam; and a reference is made to "the arguments (on Vietnam) that lost for Goldwater, though whether the writer was referring to lost votes or lost the election is not indicated.

My letter of Dec. 2 which refuted this thesis exceeded your 300-word maximum and unfortunately lost a number of significant points in editorial surgery. . .

Vietnam was not an important issue in 1964 because few American troops were involved that early. In fact, Vietnam itself was hardly an issue at all, though it received mention in discussions of two other issues: the Republican charge that their opponents had not dealt effectively with Communist aggression abroad, and the Democrats' characterization of Goldwater's hardline foreign policy as irresponsible. Significantly, the I-J's report of Johnson's final campaign speech cited in the Dec. 15 editorial did not even mention Vietnam.

Reputable experts attributed Goldwater's defeat to the personal attacks of Rockefeller and Scranton, the 24-year decline in Republican registration, and the voters' conceptions of his stands on Social Security and Medicare.

Johnson made two speeches 17 days apart in 1964 in which he expressed contradictory sentiments on Vietnam. Apparently, E. N. Baty and others who now feel betrayed by their candidate were unaware of this contradiction and in their aversion for the Goldwater stereotype did not bother to investigate very carefully the political background of his opponent. And while it is the liberals who suddenly find merit in Goldwater's slogan of "a choice, not an echo," it is quite likely that one of the campaign issues of 1968 will not be Johnson's Vietnam policy but rather the ineffective manner in which he has carried it out.

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Criticism is common and frequently expressed but praise is rarely spoken. We would like to compliment the photographer, Bob Hax, for the picture taken of the 1967 Marin debs.

Compared to published pictures taken by other photographers, his was a masterpiece. It was imaginative and not stereotyped. The arrangement of the girls was well balanced and well lighted and created a beautiful setting.

The challenge of doing something differently and well, after many years of doing the same old thing, is a great one but Mr. Hax rose to the challenge.

Dogs, Not Eagles, The Sheep Killers?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I find it extremely interesting that just a few weeks after rancher Leroy Martinelli is issued that questionable permit to kill those predatory golden eagles, we find him discovering that a neighbor's dogs are also killing his sheep. I am all for an investigation to determine if just possibly the dogs have been killing the sheep, and not the eagles. The least we could discover would be the feeding habits of Point Reyes' last golden eagles.

Serious Charges Deserve Follow-Up

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I would like to take this opportunity to voice strong objection to some remarks made in Jim Gilmartin's column of Dec. 28. In the column Mr. Gilmartin reprinted a letter from Jim Finegan relating to the trip of the Terra Linda Junior Trojans to Hawaii for an all-star football game.

While I personally have serious doubts as the merits of such a trip, or for that matter to the idea of all star games for boys in this age group, I felt that Mr. Gilmartin's comments at the conclusion of the article reflected poorly on the Independent - Journal. In an earlier column Mr. Gilmartin had in fact made some serious charges against the officials and coaches of the Junior Trojans. These seemed to require some rebuttal. I felt that Mr. Finegan's letter, which he attempted to handle in a humorous way, answered some of the charges that Mr. Gilmartin had made and deserved certainly a more serious consideration than they were given . . .

Again please understand that I am not wholly in favor of the trip that the Terra Linda team made, but since the charges were of a serious nature they should have been followed by a more serious follow-up on the part of your staff.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

In several states, highway patrol cars carry large signs in back prominently displaying the traffic fatality toll in that state for the current year — such as "420 killed in the state so far this year." One of these patrol cars had stopped for a red light, when two kids ran up behind it. The officer at the wheel was somewhat shaken when he heard one of the kids say, "Let's see how many THIS bird has mowed down!"

Social Security Hike Points Up Argument

By EDMOND LeBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Social Security benefit and tax scales—both up—add fuel to an argument about the retirement system that has been hot for some time and gets hotter as the average population gets younger.

Critics of the system say it is loaded against the young worker, that the wage earner starting out now or still in his early productive years is being taxed unfairly to pay benefits to those already retired or well on their way to retirement, who paid in much less.

Defenders say everyone, statistically speaking, stands to get a lot more out of Social Security than he puts in.

THE MATHEMATICS involved are complex and the social and economic arguments finely drawn. Skipping the philosophical dispute, here is an effort to simplify the mathematics, rounding all figures:

Suppose a young man starts work Jan. 1, 1968, and continues until Jan. 1, 2013, at which time he is 65 and retires. Suppose further he starts out at $4,000 a year and gets annual raises of $1,000 until he passes the $7,800 a-year mark—the limit on which the payroll tax is levied.

Under the new rates, he would pay in a little less than $20,000 during his working life. Of this total, however, almost $3,000 would have gone into medicare, giving him and his wife hospitalization rights in old age. Whether he ever actually recovered the equivalent of these contributions would, of course, depend on his and his wife's health.

OF THE REMAINING $17,000 it is generally agreed that something must be charged off for the insurance value of Social Security during a man's working life.

If he had died leaving minor children, there would have been payments for them. If he had become disabled, he would have received payments.

Social Security values this insurance at 28 per cent of the contribution. Others put the figure as low as 20 per cent. Taking 25 per cent as a working figure reduces the $17,000 to $12,750 for retirement.

AT THE NEW benefit rates, the retired worker and his wife of the same age would receive $323 a month in 2013. So a couple would recoup the principal amount of the contribution in almost exactly three and a half years, or by the time they were 68½. An unmarried retired worker would take half again as long to do this.

Social Security actuaries say the life expectancy of a man who has reached 65 is 13½ years and that he can expect his wife to outlive him by five years.

These calculations don't take into account interest that might have been earned or capital gains that might have been realized by the worker if he had been able to keep and invest his Social Security contributions. But they also don't take into account the virtual certainty that Congress, which has made numerous changes in Social Security in the past 30 years, will make more during the next 45.

These probably will be in the direction of greater benefits, tending to give a mathematical break to the retired and the older active workers.

THE CALCULATIONS moreover don't take into account the employer's contributions, which are equal to those of the employees. These contributions provide the cushion enabling the system to broaden and, generally speaking, to pay the individual contributor more than he has put in.

De Gaulle Offends Jewry For Sake Of Arab Oil

By PHIL NEWSON

When President Charles de Gaulle described Jews as an "elite people, sure of itself and domineering," he stirred fear among 500,000 French Jews and earned the further gratitude of the Arabs.

The Jews feared a rise in anti-Semitism, apparently with De Gaulle's blessing.

For the Arabs it was another mark of affection from De Gaulle, who in Cairo, Damascus and Baghdad has become the Arab hero-image of the West.

SINCE DE GAULLE made the remark at one of his staged press conferences, it could not be considered off-the-cuff.

Nor could it be considered in the same category as other Gaullist gestures toward the French Canadians as a language group, toward South Americans as Latins, or attempts to take advantage of anti-Americanism in Cambodia and Red China.

For to this one had been added another ingredient—oil.

For this de Gaulle was willing to override the pro-Israel sentiments of the French people, to ignore French promises of support to Israel in the event that Egypt tried to close the Gulf of Aqaba and to switch from a traditional supplier of arms to Israel to a similar role among the Arabs.

The result has been fulsome praise in the Arab press and a parade of Arab delegations to Paris.

THE FRENCH actions have drawn protests from the United States and reportedly also from Britain and the Netherlands.

The French themselves offer various explanations. One is that De Gaulle is not anti-Semitic but is simply rebuilding relations with the Arabs which France enjoyed for many years.

Another is that both the United States and Britain now are unpopular in the area, and that France simply is moving into a vacuum which otherwise would be left to the Russians.

ART BUCHWALD

No Matter How You Phrase It, It's Still Guns And Butter

WASHINGTON — It is not too early to make a report on the economy for 1968. We are grateful to Prof. Heinrich Applebaum of the Grim Economic Institute for providing us with the information that could be of such great value to all Americans.

"Professor, how do you see 1968 — economically speaking, that is?"

"I see it as another great gun-and-butter year, with possibly the thrust a little more toward guns than butter."

"Is this bad?"

"Well, in a gun-and-butter economy, you always like to have an even balance between the two, but it's hard to maintain, particularly in a society that consumes so much oleomargarine."

"WHAT CAN WE EXPECT if the pendulum swings in that direction?"

"An inflationary spiral followed by a wage and price merry-go-round which will eventually lead to a roller coaster ride ending on a Ferris wheel cycle of high interest rates."

"Would this stem the tide?" I asked.

"It depends on how many ripples you have in the waves of the economy. Some unemployment may wash over the sands of counter-production, but it's the undertow that we have to worry about."

"Could the body of our economy be hurt?"

"I think it may become bruised and sprained, but I don't see any fractures or contusions. Of course, I'm not a doctor."

"DO YOU SEE GROWTH in the gross national product?"

"There could be growth, depending on what kind of fertilizer the administration uses. We have to cultivate production, but at the same time we have to get at the weeds of inflation. This can be done by either spraying the economy with new investment, or cutting off the water to the American dollar."

"But doesn't this put pressure on the system?"

"The system can probably stand a certain amount of pressure, providing the input is not greater than the output. The problem here, of course, is heat. We can't let the economy overheat, yet if it cools off for a period of time, it might be difficult to start stoking up the fires again. I think here we have to think in terms of durable goods, if we think of anything at all."

"PROF. APPLEBAUM, is there any possibility of cushioning the economy without falling off the precipice?"

"It depends on how soft the economy gets. I don't think the government can sit on business, even though it doesn't hurt to give it a kick once in a while."

"Then from what you say, if spending continues unabated, all signs lead to another spiral which, in turn, could lead to the absence of economic euphoria and possibly an upward thrust with some strain, but not necessarily a clean break with the patterns of 1967."

Prof. Applebaum said, "Are you a wise guy, or something?"

"No sir. I was trying to get this all in perspective."

"I believe what I said was quite clear. You have a perverse economy, with relatively pessimistic monetary inversions, leading to starts and stops which could or could not set into motion a boom or bust, depending on how many people go to sports stores and buy guns, as opposed to how many people go to grocery stores and buy butter."

Ted Kennedy On Viet Tour

SAIGON (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy today was briefed by Vietnamese and American officials on problems concerning civilian war casualties.

The senator had talks with Nguyen Phuc Que, Vietnamese minister for refugees and social welfare, and Tran Luu-y, health minister. U. S. military and civilian officials later briefed him.

Aides of the Massachusetts Democrat said he planned to leave Saigon later today to begin an eight-day tour of refugee camps and civilian hospitals throughout the country.

CHARLES J. HITCH

Hitch Assumes Duties As U.C.'s President

BERKELEY (UPI) — The job of running California's vast state university system was turned over today to a cigar smoking scholar-administrator from Boonville, Mo.

Charles J. Hitch, 13th president of the University of California, took command at a time when the school is in an expansion program of heroic dimensions and is under assault by both liberal activists and conservative budget-trimmers.

In characteristic plain talk the soft-spoken new president, who will be 58 Jan. 9, said his goal is "to maintain the quality of the University of California and make it grow and continue to accept all qualified students." He discussed the task at a pre-inaugural meeting with newsmen.

Born in Boonville, Mo., Hitch was educated at Arizona University and at Oxford, where he spent 13 years as a professional scholar. He served the government during World War II, then was research director of Rand Corp. until President Kennedy called on him to revamp the Defense Department's fiscal and administrative structure.

The summary firing last January of Dr. Clark Kerr, highly esteemed president of the University, caused widespread lament over the difficulties his successor would face. Republican Ronald Reagan had been elected governor by telling the voters he would take the university administration to task for student uproar at Berkeley.

Hitch, who had been at the university since 1965 as administrative vice president, was named for the job in September by a unanimous vote of the regents. For three months he has been studying the problems he will face in running the world's largest institution of higher education — 90,000 students at nine campuses.

"I've learned that most universities and colleges in this country have three common problems," Hitch said. "The first is money, the second is student unrest and the third is the draft."

The first hurdle in his path is getting the regents, the governor and the legislature to approve $311 million in state money for the university's 1967-68 budget. This is about 60 million more than the current year's spending.

Hitch said he does not know whether he will get the money, but it is a "pretty critical year" for the university financially. The school's elite faculty, built up over many years, may not sit still for another year of austerity, he said.

Quality higher education cannot be bought and sold on a year-to-year basis, Hitch said, and the Reagan administration "has discovered that they did not have a one-year problem. It is something we are going to have to live with, from now on."

On the current controversy over whether the university should charge tuition for the first time in its history, Hitch said that in principle "not having tuition is a good thing." But, he added, tuition is not the only important factor in providing an equal opportunity for all.

Almost half of Washington State's land area is forested.

CO-OP CONGRATULATES CONGRESS

. . . for up-dating the 61-year old Meat Inspection Act of 1906. The new legislation just passed puts pressure on the 24 states which up to now have not had mandatory inspection of slaughtering plants handling meats in intra-state commerce. California has excellent inspection of meats, both inter-state and intra-state guaranteeing that they are fit for consumption.

Our Co-op stands for even more than inspection. We believe strongly in federally GRADED meats as well. That's why the beef we handle is only U.S. Department of Agriculture GRADED Choice in all of our markets, with the Standard grade added into two. Co-op shoppers get both INSPECTED and GRADED meats.

18 acres zoned and approved for mobile park. This choice wooded site has over 1000 feet of river frontage with an area suitable for a boat harbor. An old 22 room Victorian mansion with elevator, would be perfect for club house, plus restaurant and bar. A main street with utilities and sewer front the property. A small shopping center and a service station site has been planned on a portion of the 18 acres. Most of the costly engineering plans have already been done, and asking price of $250,000, makes this an exceptional buy.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Magnesium Is A Key Nutrient; It's Available In Most Food

VAN DELLEN

Magnesium (Mg) is one of the key nutrients influencing the halth of plants and animals. Man's daily requirement is infinitesimal and a deficiency usually stems from excessive loss from the body by protracted vomiting or diarrhea, certain kidney disorders, and dehydration.

Utilization of Mg also may be affected by intestinal disorders involving faulty absorption (malabsorption syndrome) or starvation. It is almost impossible to lower the supply through a poor diet because most foods contain the mineral. Vegetables, cereal grains, and nuts are particularly rich in magnesium, followed by seafoods, fish, and meat.

DEFICIENCY of Mg usually leads to extreme neuromuscular irritability with tremor, twitching, and bizarre movements of the extremities and face. Some victims complain of dizziness or staggering when walking. Disorientation, confusion, hallucinations, and convulsions also have been reported.

The mineral plays an important role as an energy producer in almost every type of cell. It activates many enzymes, especially those that are used in the transfer of energy and the stimulation of muscular contraction. A close association exists between Mg, calcium, and phosphorous. There are many other functions of magnesium that have not yet been discovered.

FOR EXAMPLE, when a victim of severe protein deficiency is given a high-protein deficiency may not recover unless magnesium is provided. The mineral is usually injected into the muscle initially. In a few days, foods containing the natural sources of Mg are added.

Such cases have been reported among Nigerian children suffering from diarrhea and dehydration.

Magnesium sulfate also is used in the treatment of convulsions due to toxemia of pregnancy. It may also lessen muscle spasms following snake bite. Many magnesium salts are used to neutralize stomach acidity. These salts also produce a laxative action.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

EXPOSURE TO BRONSHITIS

Mrs. L. B. writes: Is it dangerous for children to be around an older person with chronic bronchitis who coughs constantly?

REPLY

Only if the cough stems from an infectious process such as tuberculocic or a bacterial or viral bronchitis. Smoking is the most common cause. But the cougher should use common sense and courtesy and cover his mouth while hacking.

EYE TESTS AT 10

G. A. writes: I am 10 years old. In the last year my eyes have gotten very bad. I used to read in the car and sometimes I read in the dark. What do you think I should do?

REPLY

Speak to your mother. This may be a false alarm but an examination by a competent eye specialist will alleviate your concern.

AMEBIC INFECTION

A reader writes: What is the technical name for amebic dysentry?

REPLY

Amebiasis. We have a leaflet on this subject, which can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

SALIVARY STONE

H. C. writes: Is a salivary stone removed through the mouth or must the cheek be cut?

REPLY

Stones located in the duct leading from the salivary gland to the mouth are more easily removed from the inside.

Six Teen-Age Dances Success

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police Lt. Gus Bruneman says he is very happy about the success of six teen-age dances he organized New Year's Eve.

The occasion often has been marred by juvenile unrest, but he said there were no reports of trouble this year.

The dances attracted some 2,500 teen-agers, Bruneman said.

Trains Collide

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)—At least 11 persons were reported dead and 25 others injured today as a result of a collision yesterday of two trains near Komatipoort in the northeastern section of South Africa.

Marin Homes To Receive New Television Channel

A hitherto blank portion of the television dial will come into use this evening in many Marin homes as Kaiser Broadcasting Co's ultra-high frequency sta- Co.'s ultra-high frequency sta- from San Francisco on channel 44.

Three ultra-high frequency (UHF) stations already are operating in the Bay Area — a San Jose station on channel 36, College of San Mateo's station on channel 14, and KSAN, San Francisco, on channel 32. None, however, puts out a signal receivable on many sets in Marin.

TO REACH MARIN

KBHK, starting its telecasts at 6 p.m. today with 1.3 million watts of power, expects reception over most of Marin, according to Mel Warenback of Terra Linda, its promotion man.

For those who have TV sets made after May, 1964, it will be easy to tell whether they can receive the station. These have a UHF label on the space between channels 2 and 23. To locate a UHF channel, the viewer turns to that space, then adjusts the fine tuning knob to bring in the station — like tuning a radio.

Most sets made before May, 1964, have no provision for UHF and require a converter — a device which sits on top of the set and is wired to the back. These units range from $8 to $45 in cost.

Additional antenna may also be needed. Sets that receive San Francisco and Oakland very high frequency stations — the familiar channels 2, 4, 5, 7 and 9 — with indoor antenna probably will receive the new UHF station with only an inexpensive loop fastened to the back of the set. Others may need a UHF adapter antenna on the roof. Prices of these run from $8 to $25.

One of the TV cable companies serving Marin is ready to carry both channel 44 and channel 36. Tele-Vue Systems, Inc., will convert the two UHF stations to VHF, putting KSAN on channel 6 and KBHK ON channel 12, reported Mrs. Jody Hurst, secretary.

SERVICE PLANNED

Clear View Cable Systems will have channels 44 and 36 converted to VHF as soon as the necessary equipment arrives, said Ron Giogri, manager. It will put KBHK on channel 11, and KSAN on channel 8.

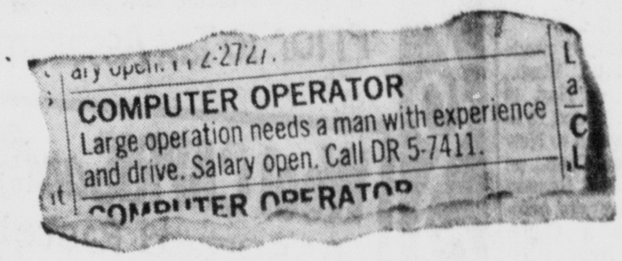
Sausalito Community TV, under the same ownership, has not yet made arrangements to add the UHF stations, according to Giorgi.

KBHK's start of programming heralds a projected expansion of UHF telecasting in the Bay Area. KSAN is in the process of being sold to Metro Media, which plans to increase its power from the present one million watts (the minimum required by the Federal Communication Commission for UHF telecasting) to four million watts.

U.S. Communications Corp. has a license for another San Francisco UHF station, on channel 20, which will go on the air sometime this year.

The Kaiser entry is the fifth in a chain of UHF stations for Kaiser Broadcasting Co. Others already in operation are in Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, and Los Angeles. The company will open a station in Cleveland in mid-January, and has applied for a license for a New York Station.

KBHK, like the other Kaiser stations, will be heavy on sports. A basketball game between the San Francisco Warriors and Los Angeles Lakers will be on the opening day's program at 8:30 p.m. today, from the Cow Palace, and the Warriors' game with the St. Louis Hawks will be telecast at 8:30 p.m. Thursday from the Oakland Coliseum. Bob Fouts, already familiar to many Marin viewers, and Hank Greenwald will share the microphone.



Who got the job?

I did.

Things are changing.

Jobs are open to everybody who has a skill. If you don't have a skill, go to your local state employment office. Find out how to get one.

Things are changing. In the next 5 years, 8,000,000 good jobs will open up for Whites, Negroes, Puerto Ricans, Mexican-Americans, everyone. To get one, get a skill.

42 Days On The Road For Reagan

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The travels of Gov. Ronald Reagan, during his first year in office, have taken him to 20 states, plus the Virgin Islands, and absented him from the state for about 42 days.

Reagan announced early in the year he would enter California's presidential primary in June as a favorite son candidate. Under this plan, he would head a delegation to the Republican national convention which would not be pledged to any presidential candidate.

The governor has maintained since that announcement that his plans go no further and that he is not a candidate for either the presidency or the number two spot, the vice presidency. Despite the disclaimers, his name has been in the public opinion polls for many months and he ranks high among the Republicans.

PARTY DUTY

Reagan said early in 1967 that he felt it was his duty to his party to make speeches at fund-raising affairs whenever possible. He said it was normal that a governor would be a better draw in distant states than in his own and thus provide funds for the party.

Reagan reportedly receives 10 per cent of the proceeds from the fund-raising appearances he makes and none of the expenses for the trips are paid by California.

FIRST TRIP

The governor's first trip out of the state was to Salem, Ore., on Feb. 11. On March 1, he made a trip to Washington, D.C., to confer with congressional leaders and was back in the nation's capital again on March 17-18. As has been the family tradition, Reagan and his family spent March 22-27 in Phoenix, Ariz., with Mrs. Reagan's parents, during the Easter vacation.

The schedule in the governor's office showed Reagan's next out-of-state trip was in Los Alamos, N. M., April 27-28, where members of the University of California board of regents inspected a nuclear installation.

On June 19, Reagan traveled to Las Vegas, Nevada, and later that month he made speeches in Omaha and Scotts Bluff, Nebr. He attended the western governor's conference in West Yellowstone, Mont., on June 25-26.

The governor's schedule showed no traveling out of state during July and August but, on Sept. 28, he flew to Chicago and Peoria, where he made an address at his alma mater, Eureka College. From Peoria, Reagan traveled to Columbia, So. Carolina, for a speech, winding up the trip with an appearance in Milwaukee, Wisc., on Sept. 30, and another in Chicago on Oct. 1.

THE TELEGRAM

Mid-October found Reagan going to Louisville, Ky., on Oct. 15, and to New York on Oct. 15. From Oct. 16-21, the governor was on the "floating" governor's conference, which traveled to the Virgin Islands. It was on this cruise that Reagan was delivered the telegram by mistake, asking him to seek support for the Vietnam position of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Later in the same month, Reagan made appearances in Des Moines, Ia., on Oct. 25, in Manhattan, Kans., Dallas and Houston, Tex., on Oct. 26, and in Chicago, Covington, Ky., and Cincinnati, Ohio, on Oct. 27.

In November, Reagan made appearances in Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., on Nov. 10 and then spent Nov. 11 and 12 in Albany, Ore. He traveled to New York and New Haven, Conn., on Dec. 3. From Dec. 4-7, Reagan was on the Yale University campus, appearing as a Chubb Fellow to deliver lectures on politics.

IN THE EAST

Reagan spent Dec. 7 in Hartford, Conn., and flew to Miami Beach, Fla., on Dec. 8. Reagan was scheduled to speak in Philadelphia, Pa., but came back to California ahead of time to attend an emergency meeting of the board of trustees of the state colleges, concerning the riot at San Francisco state college.

Marysville Bomb Scares Continue; Span Threatened

MARYSVILLE (AP) — Yuba County law officers were keeping a close watch on bridges in this area today after receiving an anonymous warning that a bridge would be dynamited.

Two dynamite explosions occurred last week and an anonymous telephone caller warned that the blasts would continue until Donald Baker, 23, and Michael Hore, 22, were released from jail. The two were held for investigation of possible narcotics law violations.

The blasts occurred at a swimming pool and a storage tank. No one was hurt.

Authorities said they discovered dynamite Friday at the home of Baker's brother, Jack, 29. The elder brother was booked on suspicion of violation of health and safety codes.

Swaziland, Africa, is about the size of Connecticut.

King Claiming Some 'Results'

NEW YORK (AP)—King Constantine of Greece, now an exile in Rome, says he could have "made a fight of it" against the military junta in Athens, but decided against it for fear of destroying his nation. But he said his effort was not a failure and produced some "positive results."

In a signed article in the current issue of Life, the king laid the failure of his attempted countercoup against the junta to the lack of support from military units he had been sure would back him. He made his effort Dec. 13, and a day later fled the country.

Brain May Hold Down Population

(Special to the I-J)

LOS ANGELES — Regulation of intricate brain-endocrine gland circuits may offer a key to population control.

Dr. Charles H. Sawyer, in the annual Faculty Research Lecture at UCLA, noted that learning to regulate these circuits may enable man eventually to control his emotions, appetites, behavior and the reproductive processes responsible for the population explosion.

Sawyer, professor of anatomy in the Medical School and on the staff of the UCLA Brain Research Institute, described some of these complex circuits which his research of the past 15 years has helped to trace in experimental animals.

Two centers in a part of the brain known as the hypothalamus regulate reproduction. One, through its action on the pituitary gland, controls harmonal events leading to ovulation and reproductive tract activity.

The other serves reproductive behavior.

Sex hormones triggered via the brain-endocrine circuit eventually act on both of these brain centers.

Synthetic progestational hormones, the basic ingredient of oral contraceptives, act on the brain center controlling ovulation, leaving the nearby hypothalamic center regulating sex behavior relatively unaffected.

Scientists Use Pool Computer

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Scientists shooting pool in the laboratory are hastening the day when man will be able to deal directly with the computer.

The game of pool is played on a console attached to a computer. The 15 balls appear as circles on the console screen, as does the cue ball.

The scientist aims a beam of light from a pencil-like object at the cue ball and the ball rolls down the screen and breaks the rack.

Depending on the aim, and where the cue ball goes, the computer makes the necessary calculations to produce an image on the screen of what would happen in an actual game.

"It's a matter of give and take," one scientist explained, "the computer doing rote calculations and man using his own ingenuity."

The pool game is designed to show how man can deal directly with the computer, without the necessity of translating his questions or data into the computer's mathematical language.

It was one of the displays at the 25th anniversary celebration of the RCA Laboratories here, the research wing of the Radio Corp. of America.

In related research, other RCA scientists are teaching computers to understand English so man can talk to the electronic brains.

One machine already has been taught to recognize some 550 syllables spoken by four persons with about 75 per cent accuracy. The number of syllables is almost enough to cover the English language, a scientist said.

Citizens Tell Off Lawbreaking Drivers

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)—This border city has a squad of "T-Men" and it is proud of them. They are volunteer citizens who take note of traffic violations they see in the city. They take down the license number and check the name for whom the auto is registered. Then they write the offenders letters just to point out that they committed a violation.

The squad has no force of law, but Police Chief Earl Chokiski said recently to a civic group that the idea seems to be making drivers more aware of the traffic laws and more careful.

Many Women Had Goiter

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The state of Texas took shape from many cultures. A native of Virginia drilled the first producing oil well, as Czech immigrants brought in the most Greek cross, planned by an famous gusher, the state capitol was designed in the shape of a architect with a German name, working for a syndicate refinanced by the British.

The capitol stonecutters came from Scotland, much of the labor force from Ireland and the statuary was largely done by an Italian.

World Could Double Production Of Food

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI)—The world could double its food supply by 1980 if farmers made better use of present production methods, says a British authority on world food problems.

"But without population control, this would be like putting money into a purse with a hole in it," says Prof. John Anderson. He said the solution to feeding the world's multiplying millions is to limit family size and to apply agricultural science intensively.

Bermuda's Reefs Hold Treasures

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An expert on naval history said today the island of Bermuda is "one of the richest areas in the world for shipwrecks."

Since the discovery of America, Bermuda has always been "the last signpost for ships sailing to Europe before they strike out across the broad Atlantic," said Mendel Peterson, who has undertaken a research project in naval history for the Smithsonian Institution.

But ships often got off course as they headed toward the fish-hook-shaped island, rammed treacherous coral reefs on the western side of Bermuda and sank.

Lying in sand pockets between these reefs "are Spanish ships and several others, covering a broad span of history," Peterson said in a report to the third Conference on Underwater Archaeology in Miami.

One 16th Century Spanish wreck recently "yielded a treasure of gold and emeralds and other valuables of great intrinsic and historical value," he said.

Salvage operations from the same wreck also produced tools, plates and a shark hook "so well made it could be used today," Peterson said.

Among the gold treasure was a perfect 16th Century gold bar, about 10 inches long and weighing 40 ounces.

A crucifix of the early 16th Century was found at another wreck site, along with coins bearing the inscription of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella of Spain.
